Dedicated to

WILLIAM HEATON SCHEMPF, Mus. B., Mus. M.

Since his arrival at Lehigh in 1946, William Heaton Schempf, Associate Professor of Music, has devoted his boundless energy, his penchant for hard work, and his wide musical talent to this end: the creation of better music at Lehigh and of wider interest and participation in that music by members of the University family. His noteworthy success is a matter of record.

In 1949, the faculty selected him as the co-recipient of the first Alfred Noble Robinson Award for the faculty member under thirty-five and below the rank of associate professor who is considered "as giving outstanding performance in the service of the University." In national competition he recently won a United States government Fulbright grant for graduate study abroad during the coming academic year.

It is in appreciation of his distinguished service to Lehigh and to Lehigh men that we dedicate to William Heaton Schempf the 1952 Epitome.

THE LEHIGH STORY

LEHIGH UNIVERSITY, Bethlehem, Pa.—Founded by Asa Packer in 1865—"Homo minister et interpres naturae"—Brown and White—Christmas-Saucon. Any one of these phrases may serve to conjure up in the mind of the reader his own particular picture of a personality—for a university has a personality—which has exerted its force upon his own life. Mothers, fathers, students, professors, administrators, industrialists, townspeople, educators, and a host of others who have come into contact with Lehigh through one medium or another will react with mixed feelings—some favorable and some unfavorable. Parents may think in terms of dollars and sacrifices; students of long assignments, social life, maturity, or potential earning power; still others may regard the university as a life's career, a source of trained personnel, or business income. The history and background of the university determine to a large extent the way in which it will conduct itself and the manner in which it will make itself felt with respect to individuals, communities, and even larger groups. Lehigh University is certainly no exception to the rule.

Lehigh as an entity was conceived when a Lehigh Valley industrialist, Asa Packer, felt the desire to do something for the community that had given him an opportunity to raise himself from a mule driver on the Lehigh Canal to the highly respected position of industrialist, politician, and jurist. Coupled with this desire to repay was the realization that this nation which had just completed a destructive civil war was embarking upon an entirely new phase of its growth—that of a tremendous industrial expansion. Because of his intimate contact with industry and as a result of his own experience in "pulling himself up by his bootstraps", Asa Packer was able to foresee the need for technologically trained young men to enter into and to foster this new growth. With this idea in mind and a sum of $500,000 to back it up, Mr. Packer, who was not college-trained, paid a call on the Right Reverend William Bacon Stevens, D.D., Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, to ask him for his advice on the establishment of a curriculum for the institution of learning he had decided to found. Bishop Stevens drew out Mr. Packer's vision of a school which would provide a polytechnic education in theoretical and applied science for the young men of the valley, state, and nation. With this as a basis Bishop Stevens made extensive inquiries into the systems and philosophies of higher education and derived a plan for the yet unborn school which would combine the classics and a "School of General Literature" with the original purely scientific concept of Mr. Packer.

Bishop Stevens' scheme was accepted by Mr. Packer and the first step in the creation of the new personality was considered taken. Where, however, was the institution to be located? At first Asa Packer considered his home town of Mauch Chunk at the upper end of the Lehigh Valley but found that it lacked the general environment in which he wished this venture to be situated. His next move was to Easton and Lafayette College where he suggested the possibility of attaching his idea to the small (Lafayette then numbered 50 students) denominational arts college. No clear reason for his rejection of this possibility is recorded, but it is known that the industrial, social, and physical environment of nearby Bethlehem appealed strongly to the founder of Lehigh.

On July 27, 1865 the first meeting of the Board of Trustees for the rapidly forming institution of learning was held at the Sun Inn, Bethlehem, Pa., with Bishop Stevens as president. Plans were made for building on the tract of fifty-seven acres which the founder had donated to the school and much attention was given to the selection of a man who would take over the administrative reins of the embryo university and would guide it through the difficult first years. Thus it was that on November 4, 1865, Henry Coppee, LL.D., was elected the president of Lehigh University. At about the same time the original faculty was elected and, according to the first register, consisted of Henry Coppee, President and Professor of History and English Literature; the Reverend Eliphalet Nott Potter, Professor of Moral and Mental Philosophy and of Christian Evidences; Charles Mayer Wetherhill, Professor of Chemistry; Edwin Wright Morgan, Professor of Mathematics and Mechanics; Alfred Marshall Mayer, Professor-elect of Physics and Astronomy; William Theodore Roepper, Professor of Mineralogy and Curator of the Museum (there was no museum); George Thomas Graham, Instructor in Latin and Greek; and Mr. George Washington Smith, Janitor.

The University Seal was adopted by the Board on September 4, 1865 and is described by the minutes of that meeting as follows: "In the upper part is a Sun; below is an open Bible; on the Bible lies a heart, thus bringing in the Three Persons of the Godhead, the Ever Blessed Trinity: the God of Love, Christ as the Light of the World, and the Holy Spirit as the Inspiration of the Word and the Spirit of Truth. . . .

Around the upper margin of the Seal are the words of Lord Bacon: HOMO MINISTER ET INTERPRES NATURAE. Around the lower corner margin, the words: LEHIGH UNIVERSITY. Below the Bible, the words: FOUNDED BY ASA PACKER, 1865". Lehigh's motto is taken from Francis Bacon's "Novum Organum" and may be translated: Man, the servant and interpreter of nature.

Having been chartered by the state legislature of Pennsylvania February 9, 1866, The Lehigh University opened its doors to forty members of the first two classes on September first of the same year. The dream of Asa Packer and the hard, careful labor of Bishop Stevens had finally created a reality!

The Lehigh Man of eighty-six years ago certainly saw his college in a much different light than many of those who were to follow in his footsteps. A Moravian church which had been bought with the property and renamed Christmas Hall was the sole building on the campus and, as such, served as chapel, dormitory, recitation and lecture hall, and as the administrative offices. These first students, who were at least sixteen years of age and possessed "good moral character," were required to pass rigorous preliminary examinations to enable them to begin the first two years of general background studies which were thought to be necessary regardless of their eventual aim. Rooms were free but the cost of instruction was set at $90 per year for the first and second classes and $100 per year for students in the Schools of Special Instruction. To aid deserving men who were unable to afford the cost of attending Lehigh, three Foundation scholarships were established by Mr. Packer and two Competition scholarships per class were also set up. Of course, "Holders of scholarships must be models of excellence" and were required, as were all students, to refrain from smoking, gambling, intoxication, or indecent language.

On September 1, 1867, the new University had gotten its wobbly legs under itself and began taking the first steps in expanding its undergraduate membership and in revising its academic curriculum. The second college year started with three classes in residence at Lehigh, the Special Schools having been opened, and no less than fifty students had affiliated themselves with the polytechnic school. Packer Hall, a gift of the founder, was first occupied in September 1868 and thus the University was off on its career as a full-fledged personality—as a real influence in the lives and thinking of the people who were destined to come in contact with it during the ensuing years.

Extra-curricular life began as undergraduates formed the Junto, an honorary literary society of which all members of the faculty and Board of Trustees were automatic members and to which students were elected. Another phase of “non-academic” life created quite a stir on the campus and surrounding Bethlehem when several not too gentle pitched battles occurred between the Lehigh students and town “roughs” in Bethlehem and South Bethlehem.

Publications were also one of the first organized student activities on campus. In 1875 members of the Junto established the Epitome as a publication of the sophomore class. Written in somewhat flowery language, the first Epitome was a paper-bound volume and, by its own admission, did “not claim to be a literary publication.” Responsibility for publishing the yearbook was taken over by the junior class in 1884; not until 1931, however, did the senior class begin publishing its own annual. Except for a short-lived publication by the class of '76, the Lehigh Journal, the next literary endeavor to raise its staff among Lehigh students was the Burr which operated under the motto, “Don’t sit on me.” The faculty apparently had little regard for the independent spirit of the Burr's personnel for it was suspended twice during its sojourn on the campus, the final blow falling in 1935. A fourth publication, the Lehigh Quarterly, which devoted its pages to articles on technical subjects, alumni news, and some attempts at creative writing, failed after two years' existence primarily because of a general lack of student interest. So-called variety magazines have had a rocky road to travel at Lehigh finding opposition from the faculty on one hand and lack of student interest on the other. Three more such magazines made valiant attempts at success. The Review started out as a literary and philosophical magazine for intelligent students but forgot its primary aim and followed the Burr in 1940. The Bachelor had a short life in the early '40's and, after the second World War, the Goblet sprang into existence and sprang almost as quickly out of the picture in 1949. The Brown and White, first published in 1894, led a much less stormy existence and is today one of the two student publications on campus.

Not all attempts to organize outside-of-class activities had the trials and tribulations of the Burr and its fellow publications. Interest groups got together, organized societies, and engaged men from all over the country to visit and talk with them. The first of these was the Chemical Society, begun in 1871, and reputedly the oldest student chemical society still in existence. Shortly after its founding, the society changed its scope to include natural history. Following closely upon the heels of the Chemical and Natural History Society came the Engineering Society (1875) which was the sponsor of the ill-fated Journal and Quarterly. The idea and value of such interest groups caught on at Lehigh until every course had its own club or organization and students who found mutual interests often established such groups as the Christmas Hall Telegraph Club.

Honoraries, another phase of student activities, apparently had their beginning at Lehigh when

CHARLES RUSS RICHARDS HOUSE

Prof. E. H. Williams, Jr., recognizing the lack of a Phi Beta Kappa to honor outstanding achievement in the field of engineering, organized the first chapter of Tau Beta Pi at Lehigh in 1885. Since that time, this society has been adopted by 91 of the leading technical schools of the country. Phi Beta Kappa followed in 1887.

As a result of the efforts and foresight of thousands of men who have planned and participated in the professional, interest, avocational, and honorary groups throughout the history of Lehigh there are over eighty different directions in which the Lehigh man of today can expand his extra-curricular horizons.

Any discourse of the benefits which are available to an undergraduate today cannot bypass the name of Richard Harding Davis, one of Lehigh's most famous undergraduates. Although he never graduated from Lehigh (he was expelled), his tremendous energy, his sharp wit, and his general personality have done a lot toward establishing such campus organizations as Mustard & Cheese and Arcadia. The former resulted from a group of students who met in a local beer parlor, Rennig's, to hear men and women of theatrical fame who were travelling in the vicinity and to consume a delicious (so they wrote) meal of oysters, bread, mustard, and cheese. The organization selected the title of Mustard & Cheese when, as was quite natural, their interests turned to amateur theatrics. Thus, on April 10, 1885, the group, following the suggestion of their leader, Charles Belmont Davis who was aided and abetted by his brother, Richard, presented its first real production, Sir Dagobert and the Dragon, in the old Sun Inn. According to somewhat hazy records, an original play, Mary, the Child of Misfortune, by Richard Harding Davis, was presented a year earlier by a few members of the group.

Richard Davis was also one of the most outspoken opponents of the secret fraternities and societies which had become prevalent on campus by the middle of the 1880's. To show his opposition to such organizations, Davis got together a congenial group of students which met in local taverns for "pipes, beer, and gingeralia." Also included among the activities of this group, the Arcadia, were philosophical discussions and boxing. In 1894, when dissension arose over the question of cheating in University exercises—one student often added the words "& Co." to his work—this group came forward with the suggestion of an honor system for the student body and thus Arcadia began its functioning as a liaison between the students and the faculty. A constitution was drawn up to administer the system and, with various campus leaders as members, Arcadia stepped out in the role it has had ever since—student governing body. Many reorganizations took place during the next half century until a group of energetic World War II veterans drew up and secured the adoption of the present constitution providing for a democratic campus-wide election of members.

Athletics also had their beginnings at Lehigh about the time of Richard Harding Davis. Although many intramural and intraclub skirmishes had taken place from the very beginnings of the University, baseball was the first intercollegiate sport to firmly establish itself and the annual game with Lafayette dates back as far as 1885. Lehigh, too, was one of the pioneers in the IC-4A's, an intercollegiate athletic group, joining the newly formed organization in 1876. Lacrosse, which was introduced in 1884, rapidly advanced due to Arnold K. Reese, '89, who captained and trained the team throughout his college career. Lehigh won the Lacrosse Championship of the United States in '90, '93, '95 and '96 all of which speaks very highly of Mr. Reese's coaching ability.

Football was also among the original sports at

Lehigh, the first intercollegiate game being played in 1885. Total scores for the first years of Lehigh football stacked up something like this: 1884, Lehigh 16—Opponents 181; 1885, Lehigh 28—Opponents 144; 1886, Lehigh 90—Opponents 42. The early days of football as described by Richard Harding Davis (again) are very different from the smoothly run and scientifically played games of today. He writes in the April 1891 issue of the Quarterly:

"Jake Robeson [the inventor of the flying wedge], (who) is the father of football at Lehigh, . . . induced the Sophomores of the University of Pennsylvania to send their eleven up . . . on Dec. 8, 1885 . . . Though it was raining at the time and the grounds were covered with eight inches of mud, over three hundred spectators came out . . . (to see) a victory for the visitors by a score of 16-10. There was no grass on the athletic field then, nothing but rocks, tin cans and a soft quicksand of mud.

". . . in '87, '88, '89 football became the game of all others at Lehigh and her eleven ranked with the first four teams in the country . . . She has now accomplished the unprecedented record of winning four games in four days."

Despite the fabulous Lehigh elevens of the past, it took the 1950 version of a Lehigh team to turn in the first undefeated and untied record in 67 years of Brown and White football.

And wrestling . . . perhaps THE big sport at Lehigh, if such a label can be attached to one of our intercollegiate sports. Begun in 1910 and under the direction of Billy Sheridan for almost fifty years, wrestling has grown and grown until now Lehigh is known as the eastern capital of the sport and until Billy Sheridan is often called the "Knute Rockne of wrestling".

Although the Lehigh Athletic Association, composed entirely of students, was formed in 1874 to further athletics, it was approximately ten years later that sports really began to spring up at Lehigh. In addition to baseball, lacrosse, football and wrestling, such intercollegiate and intramural athletics as rugby, tug-of-war, track, bicycling and even walking were in evidence. In 1885 the students, realizing the ineffectiveness of their Athletic Association, elected four men among the faculty and alumni to aid them in developing sports in general. A financial crisis resulted in 1894 and the AA was faced with extinction. Through the cooperation of everyone concerned enough money was raised to keep Lehigh's athletic head above water. This incident, however, showed the need for a better organization of the University's athletic program and the Board of Trustees took the matter in hand. An Athletic Committee was established consisting of alumni, undergraduates and faculty to oversee the administration and finances of intercollegiate athletics in particular.

ECKLEY B. COXE MINING LABORATORY

A remarkable parallel to present day criticism of college professionalism arose shortly after 1910 when coaches and alumni alike were aware of the downward trend of college athletics, leading away from the wholesome amateur type. In 1912 one Lehigh football coach made the following comments which might well have been uttered in 1952:

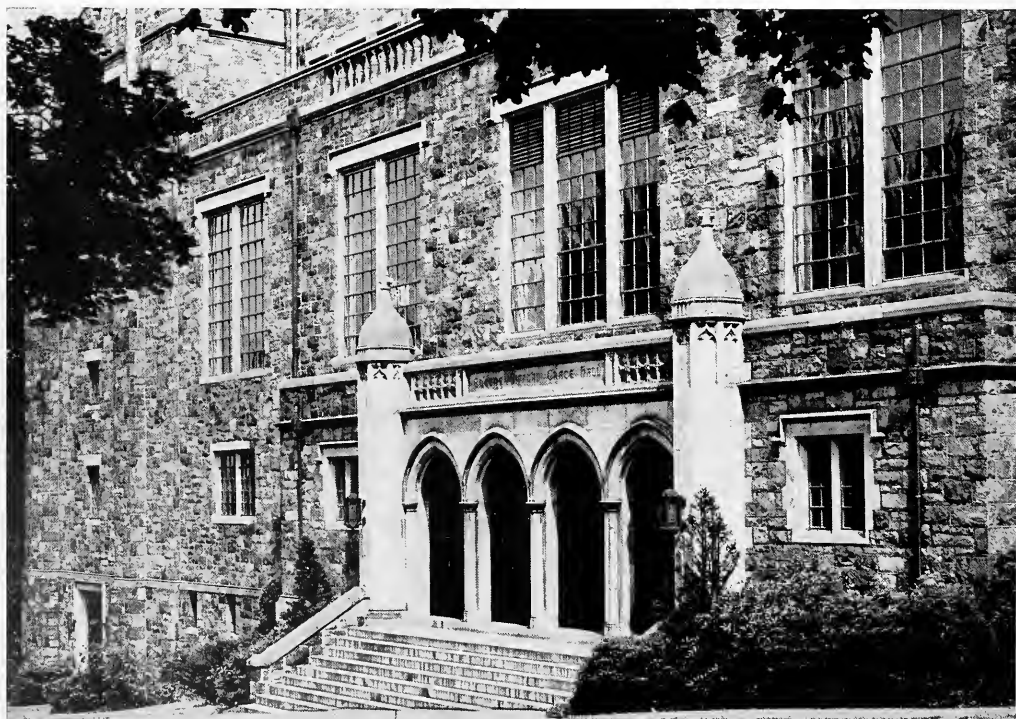

"I favor keeping our teams clean . . . We have a handicap which we can never overcome and don't want to overcome—and that is the fact that our standards of scholarship are high. We are proud of that fact . . . But that we can have the best teams composed of high grade (scholastically) men is proven by the past."

Closely associated with the athletic problems of Lehigh were the difficulties that arose in ironing out her own physical education problems. Until 1885 the students were without a gymnasium and did not hesitate to bemoan the fact in the editorials of Lehigh magazines during the time. One student, obviously an engineer, wrote in 1874:

"Our heads are full, our brains fatigued
With cycloid and trapezium—
So now, to get our muscle up,
Pray give us a gymnasium."

In 1882 a "fine, well-appointed" building was begun and in March 1885 the Gymnasium, later renamed Coppee Hall, was finished at a cost of approximately $40,000. An indication of the rising status of physical education at Lehigh may be gained by looking at the titles assigned to the head of the program—Gymnasium Director, Director of Physical Culture, and finally Professor of Physical Education. Charles Taylor donated funds to his alma mater to build a gymnasium and field house. Just recently Taylor Gym has been greatly expanded by the addition of a fine swimming pool and general gymnasium facilities have been increased to the point where all physically capable students can be accommodated for an average of over two scheduled periods per week. In addition an excellent intramural program has been established enabling living groups to compete for prizes awarded in each sport.

No attempt to portray the early history of student activities would be complete without information regarding musical organizations. Undergraduates of 1952 feel this facet of Lehigh's personality through such media as the Spring Music Festival, the Glee Club, the Band, and many other University musical activities. When good fellows got together and a few glasses of beer undoubtedly were in evidence, it must have been quite natural for the old residents of Christmas and Packer Halls to break into song. In line with the desire to sing it was inevitable that musical organizations should spring up. One of the first of these was the choir whose personnel appears initially in the 1875 Epitome. The Glee Club began its rise in 1890 when Dr. J. F. Wolle took over its direction and in 1894 the men of the club were giving concerts in many eastern cities. Also travelling with them were the Banjo and Mandolin Clubs. In 1900 the Lehigh University Musical Association was formed by the combination of these three groups. Lehigh, too, had its share of quartettes and sextettes: most of the classes graduating during the 1800's had their own small vocal organizations.

One Epitome lists a unique orchestra, evidently formed by students majoring in chemistry, composed of such rare instruments and personnel as the Fish-horn Soloist, E^b Retort, Soloist on the Beer Mug, and Organ(ic) Manipulator.

Among other musical events worthy of note during the early years of Lehigh are the composition of the Alma Mater by John J. Gibson '95 who wrote the words to the tune of "Annie Lyle," and the first Packer Chapel performance of the Bach Festival in the school year 1911-12.

Our fast-stepping Brown and White Band made its appearance in 1904 under the name of the Lehigh Orchestra. Around 1908 the Band was formed as such but it was not until the middle twenties, when the Bethlehem Steel Company donated instruments and other equipment to the Band, that it began to grow to its present stature.

Now that some idea has been given of the approved extra-curricular activities of Lehigh Men during a part of the University's history, a picture of the actual life of the college student in the "good old days" should prove interesting. The way he lived, where he lived, and what he did for recreation and amusement changed as the times changed and as the University expanded its facilities.

As has been mentioned before, the first forty Lehigh men were at least sixteen years of age and possessed "good moral character." What they found when they arrived would certainly surprise the men of today. Instead of a large well-developed campus they found Christmas Hall. Period! Although ground had been broken for "magnificent" Packer Hall on July 1, 1866, it was still in the process of construction and was not available for dormitory, chapel, classes, administration, and museum until September two years later. Before they were accepted for admission these students had to "take the pledge by signing their names to the statement: 'I promise to obey faithfully the Laws and Regulations of the Lehigh University, and to give full, prompt, and cheerful obedience to all its officers.'"

Something about the student day—Since he lived and went to school in the same building, the 1866 version of Joseph College was able to spend an extra fifteen minutes in bed. Mr. George Washington Smith aroused the boys early or at least in time so that they could attend the 8:45 chapel required of all. It went hard with the student who failed to attend these daily exercises, but it was really unpleasant if he missed Sunday service at the chapel or the church of his choice.

Classes were much the same as they are today, the principle of instruction being textbook with supplementary lectures. The first chemistry students were pleasantly surprised when, on the first day of classes, Prof. Wetherhill handed out printed pamphlets containing the thirty-some lectures he was to deliver during the course of instruction. No cuts were allowed, however, so the device was actually an aid to learning rather than a deterrent to it, or so it was claimed.

Unfortunately, a long-standing policy of Lehigh University has been Saturday classes, and the original Lehigh men found the situation much as we find it today. However, they had only one class, from immediately after chapel (9:00) to 10:00. With six professors, not including G. W. Smith, and only forty students there was plenty of class and laboratory work to be assigned. When an old grad tells you he worked hard back then, he's probably telling the truth for Lehigh's assignments were tough! As an additional hazard to high grades, the gas lights in the dormitory were turned off by 11 p. m. and there were proctors living in nearby rooms to insure compliance with the regulations.

If the frosh of 1866 were to believe the first register of the University, they probably wrote home to their parents, "The health of Bethlehem is proverbial. The air is pure and extremely invigorating."

At the time Bethlehem's wealth of industry along the Lehigh River had not yet grown to its amazing proportions of today and the river was a favorite place of recreation. Swimming (believe it or not) and skating were the vogue in season (the Lehigh froze over in those days). Also located on the Lehigh River was the "romantic" Calypso Isle to which stalwart Lehigh men were probably wont to row and canoe for picnics and Sunday afternoons. Of course, the taverns of the Borough of South Bethlehem and its neighbor across the river were great temptations to Lehigh men of the early years and many succumbed to the attraction. Students got together in rather closely knit social groups, which evolved into Eating Clubs and later to fraternity living groups. Each of the Eating Clubs developed its own name and motto; one, the Cannibals, selected the aptly phrased slogan, "We don't eat men, but don't we men eat."

The fashions of the day led to a nickname for well-dressed Lehigh men—dudes, defined by the Burr as men who "brush their hair into their eyes and wear tight pants." The young Bethlehemites often took exception to the natty attire, all of which caused the Bethlehem police much dismay and a few young men bruised knuckles and black eyes; but it was all in "fun," even the pitched battles. The "Townies" often fought for, instead of against, the men on the hill when Lafayette moved into town for one of the annual sport clashes. And the Lehigh men, then, as now, had their complaints against the toll collector on the New Street bridge as a Burr article which laments the death of this noble gentleman's watchdog indicates.

In the 1880's Bethlehem gave Lehigh quite a scare when a smallpox epidemic broke out in the southern part of the city. Before the University was closed to protect the health of the students, long and heavy arguments took place between the two schools of thought on "how to dress to prevent the contraction of the pox". One of the theories was based on the assumption that the more clothes you wore, the less chance the germ had of reaching the body; the other maintained that the fewer the clothes the less the chance of the smallpox germ growing and propagating in dark folds of clothing. All these events were, and are still, a part of Lehigh, though most have disappeared with the passage of time.

LANBERTON HALL

As the University kept growing, so did its traditions and undergraduate ceremonies. Two of these now vanished events are worthy of note. First are the annual Cane Rushes which Catharine Drinker Bowen, daughter of a past president of Lehigh, describes in her History of Lehigh University as follows:

"The offhand way in which the students regarded the casualties incident of this species of sport is shown in the following remarks which the Burr of 1889 makes on a recent rush: 'The struggle on the whole was a fine one, practically free from slugging, with the usual amount of confusion incident to all rushes and unfortunately more than the usual number of accidents.' The grand rush held on the night before opening, on the terrace of Packer Hall, has also passed into oblivion, though there are many who carry the scars of battle gained on that steep slope in the dark, with the ambulance waiting in the President's back yard"

A second tradition, typically Lehigh, was the Calculus Cremation which lasted as a yearly event until the school year 1924-1925. Each year, after the sophomores had successfully defeated the demon, they held a joyous celebration in which they imagined themselves as slaves of the "King" until the final examinations where they freed themselves from his iron grip. The celebration usually involved a huge bonfire, burning Calculus in effigy, while students grouped around the blaze, hurling their books, last token of their bondage, into the fire.

Unfortunately many of these well-concocted traditions have passed on to be replaced by somewhat more conservative demonstrations. We still have our Flagpole Day, Lafayette Pep Rally, freshman dinks and rules, pledge duties, "Hell" Week, and tugs-of-war, but it is understandable why the Lehigh men of the 1880's, '90's and the early 1900's still think a bit nostalgically about the rough-and-ready times they had welcoming freshmen and putting them through their paces. Regardless, traditions all have taken a very firm place in the year-by-year life of Lehigh and have made their real contribution toward shaping the University's influence on its students.

While students and student activities were evolving here, the University as a whole was going through a series of monumental advances which were destined to provide us students of 1952 with the advantages we now enjoy. Many of these changes were brought about by far-seeing men in whose hands the guidance of the University had been placed; others were the result of economic, cultural, and world conditions.

One of the most profound effects of Lehigh's original organization under the educated hand of Bishop Stevens is the religious influence that has become a welcome part of Lehigh. A clergyman of the Episcopal Church has served on the Board of Trustees almost without interruption since 1865. So important to early Lehigh was this factor that several catalogues, beginning with the 1871 edition, included the phrase, "under the auspices of the Protestant Episcopal Church" on its title page. Widespread misunderstanding of this statement plus the fact that University chapel services were of an Episcopalian nature led the Board to clarify Lehigh's status regarding church affiliation with the statement, issued about the turn of the century, "Lehigh University is not and never has been under denominational control." Apparently Lehigh, which is now explicitly described as non-denominational, merely wished to state the influence of the church upon the formulation of its policies by its "auspices" statement and not to indicate any sort of control. The Board of Trustees still includes a clergyman of the Episcopal Church among its members and chapel exercises are of the order of those conducted in Episcopal churches.

Religious organizations among students have also had their effect on student life and thinking, beginning with a very active YMCA group before the turn of the century and culminating in the present organization where students of the three faiths which comprise 99% of the undergraduate body, Protestant, Jewish, and Roman

TAYLOR GYMNASIUM

Catholic, are distinctly separate and yet combined under one Interfaith Council. A tangible accomplishment of this group is the Conference on Religion, first held in 1951, which proved to be a great success in helping students re-evaluate the place and effect of religion as it pertains to daily living.

While such factors as religion and student activities play a vital part in making a University truly an institution of learning, one most easily observable feature of any college is its curriculum. It is this criterion on which many people base their estimate of such an institution. Guided by capable educators, Lehigh's curricular offerings expanded from the first two classes in evidence at the opening in 1866 through such Special Schools as the School of General Literature, the Civil Engineering School, and the School of Mining and Metallurgy, to the present setup which was introduced in the fall of 1918. During this evolution several curricula, among them a School of Law and an Evening School of Business, were given trial runs and discarded for one reason or another. The wisdom of the decisions which brought Lehigh's curricula under a College of Engineering, a College of Business Administration, a College of Arts and Science, and a General College Division can be demonstrated, to some degree, by the increase in graduating seniors from five in the class of 1869 to five and six hundred during the past few years.

HENRY STURGIS DRINKER HOUSE

Closely connected with academic offerings is tuition, the price the University asks from its students to complement its return on invested funds. From an initial tuition of $90 per year for underclassmen and $100 per year for those enrolled in the Special Schools, tuition underwent a series of changes until it was completely done away with for the period 1871-1892 when large additional gifts were received from the founder. The nationwide depression which hit the nation in 1893 left Lehigh in poor financial condition. Since a large fraction of the University endowment was invested in stock according to the provisions of Asa Packer's will, the recession cut deeply into Lehigh's operating capital. Around 1896 an appeal for $200,000 directed toward the state legislature of Pennsylvania resulted in a grant of $150,000 which pulled Lehigh through the difficult days. Since 1892, however, students have paid tuition. At present time tuition fees are $550 per semester for the College of Engineering and $512.50 for students in the College of Arts and Science, the College of Business Administration, and the General College Division.

In addition to serving her students to the best of her ability, Lehigh has not hesitated, in times of national emergency, to offer her facilities and her aid to the cause. Her first real opportunity to do this came during the year 1917 when Lehigh made her resources available to the government. In the fall of 1918 a unit of the SATC (Student Army Training Corps) literally took over the campus; all physically fit students eighteen or over were inducted into the Corps. The campus became an armed camp with sentries watching each of the entrances and demanding passes from student and professor alike. The SATC lasted on campus until shortly after the war; financially, Lehigh lost very little during this period as the government reimbursed her for tuition and depreciation costs.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps was a natural outgrowth of the SATC. Although the first delegation from Lehigh that went to a summer training camp for civilians left in 1913, it was not until 1919 that ROTC was really established at Lehigh and not until the following year was it made compulsory for freshmen and sophomores.

The second world conflict did not find Asa Packer's polytechnic college unprepared to make her contribution to national defense. A backlog of ROTC graduates was certainly one of her most significant contributions, but she also wished her facilities and staff to be put to the best of use. Accordingly her laboratories and engineering know-how were utilized by the government and her general academic setup was taken over for government sponsored "V" programs. And, although the campus was not the military reservation of 1918, it showed unmistakable signs of military activity.

Effects of the Korean "police action" are not in great evidence about the campus, unless it is shown in the Selective Service questionnaires which keep coming in or unless it is shown by the general concern that students show in their bull-sessions and classroom discussions.

Summing up, one thing can be said—Lehigh has not shirked her obligations to the nation, but rather has come forward in time of need offering her faculty, her equipment, and, most precious of all, her young men to the cause of democracy.

One of Lehigh's newest organizations, the Institute of Research, has made its contribution to national defense as well as to industry and fundamental research. Organized in 1924 "to encourage and promote scientific research and scholarly achievement in every division represented at the University . . .," the Institute began its real growth in 1945 when a reorganization took place which changed its structure from that of an essentially paper organization to the present well-run state. At the present time the organization has grown to the point where it has a total annual budget of over $600,000 and employs about 120 men and women, 60 of them members of the senior staff of the University. Projects under the Institute are of a varied nature and encompass a multitude of fields of knowledge. At the present time there are approximately fifty projects in operation—some for industry, some for the government, some for private concerns, and still others for the general furthering of knowledge which the University is constantly seeking to achieve.

All these—the Institute of Research, the curricula, the ROTC, tuition, etc.—are a part of the "polytechnic" college on South Mountain. Many others are in evidence which have not been mentioned but which, nevertheless, play their own role in the development of Lehigh and the furthering of her power.

Asa Packer and Bishop Stevens would be mighty surprised if they could look upon the mature young personality that they created 87 years ago—and they would throw out their chests a little, too. Although the face of the University has changed greatly from the time it contained only Christmas Hall to 1952 when it is covered with class buildings, dormitories, and fraternity houses, it will change even more during the next hundred years; the spirit and force that is Lehigh will continue to push onward, ever expanding her sphere of influence and ever growing in stature. The basic tenets upon which the University was founded—those of the sciences, broadened, softened, and deepened by the humanities—will continue to be her guiding lights in the years to come.

Shaper of men, that is Lehigh summed up in three words. And the thousands who have felt her influence bear a rather loud testimony to the wisdom with which she has gone about her duty. Her sons have been successful—successful in a professional sense, true,—but, what is even more important and more real, in the complete sense of a Lehigh Man. These words carry with them all the tradition and history of almost nine decades of existence. They carry with them responsibility to live up to ideals and predecessors; they carry with them a responsibility to justify the faith of many who have given so much to Lehigh. Yes, Asa must be very proud as he looks down upon the institution of learning he founded.

Perhaps LEHIGH UNIVERSITY, Bethlehem, Pa.—founded by Asa Packer in 1865—"Homo minister et interpretatur naturae"—Brown and White—Christmas-Saucon have fuller and deeper meanings now. Perhaps the personality of Lehigh which is composed of many, many facets is a little more real. Perhaps the words alma mater, foster mother, carry with them some significance and emotion. At any rate Lehigh has her sons and can be very rightly proud and maternal when she sees her greatest goal become a reality, year after year, in the LEHIGH MAN.

A SENIOR YEAR FOR '52

There seems to be something different about the last year of undergraduate college—maybe it's easier, maybe it's the idea that school is just about over, or maybe just being a senior makes the difference. Even though untold numbers of graduation speakers have brought out the point that commencement is the beginning rather than the end, the windup of the senior year definitely marks the finish to a life that was both fun and work. The parties, dances, and bull-sessions will have to take a back seat and the college atmosphere will fade into one of career and family. Many things make college peculiarly college—sports, social events, fellowship, and every day happenings. Sports scores are carefully recorded in large tomes for the eager consumption of interested parties; social events and fellowship wind up firmly entrenched in experience and are met again and again in daily living; every day happenings tend to be forgotten as few are interested in compiling lists of non-momentous events.

The school year 1951-52 had its share of events. It opened in September with a large freshman class and approximately 50 "misplaced persons," the freshmen who entered during the summer. Already accustomed to Lehigh life they pointed the way for the uninitiated and it wasn't long before all 2,600 men were in the swing of things. Cyanide and Arcadia began functioning and the old Freshman cabinet was re-formed under a new operating procedure. The men of '55 were the first to come in contact with the Freshman Orientation classes in which various student leaders met once a week for three weeks with the novices to give them the scoop on Lehigh life, where to get dates (it appeared that the frosh needed little help along these lines), and some background on Lehigh history and traditions. And true to past performance the Nine Old Men came through with flying colors, defeating their younger rivals 10-0 in the traditional softball game.

Early in the Fall the campus was thrown into civil strife when a battle royal occurred between the stalwart men of the Dean's Office and the fabulous vocabulary of Prof. Quirk. The controversy seems to have centered around an objet d'art which was, at the time, rather prominently displayed on the table around which the University Discipline Committee was wont to meet. The statue in question showed a lion, tiger, mountain lion standing over its fallen prey and, quite naturally, was thought to be out of order in its resting place. Fortunately tempers did not flare too high and according to reliable reports no blood was shed; the net result was that the statue was removed from the bar of justice in Dean Congdon's office and is now reposing in the archives of the Fine Arts department.

At about the same time, Lehigh's IFC began to develop its Community Service program where pledges and members of Lehigh fraternities single out worthwhile projects that may be carried out in the Bethlehem community and devote their energies, free of charge, to these undertakings. The idea behind the program is to direct some of the wasted efforts of "Hell" Week into more useful channels.

In line with general campus improvements Taylor Hall was renovated during the Summer of 1951 and the work continued on into the Fall. Alumni were solicited to add their contributions to the fund and when the dust settled it was apparent that ex-Lehigh men were to be the benefactors of the residents of the slightly depreciated hall. A Brown and White headline, "Steel Shaft to Replace Aged Pole," announced the demise of Lehigh's white flagpole in the interests of progress and safety. Also planned for the very near future was a large testing laboratory to adjoin Fritz lab. The new edifice is to cost approximately 1.2 million dollars and will house one of the largest beam testing machines in the world; it is scheduled for completion by September 1954.

Placement was a matter dear to the hearts of most of the seniors during their last few days at Lehigh. Aided by a highly efficient Placement Service, Lehigh engineers found jobs, or at least job offers, in percentages ranging very close to 100 per cent. The situation was somewhat more stringent for business and arts men, but final figures were about as predicted. The first interview was an ordeal, the second ran a little more smoothly, and by the eighteenth or nineteenth it was the student who was doing the actual interviewing and the company representative who was being interviewed. Placement scheduling was preceded by three talks on the types of jobs open and the proper method of taking an interview. Few will forget and many used the Teal method for shaking hands—keep your hand in your pocket to prevent it from getting cold and to avoid a wet handshake wipe it across the seat of your pants before entering the interview.

Working for Uncle Sam was a popular subject for discussion with the world situation in a somewhat unstable situation. Many seniors were enrolled in the ROTC or AROTC programs and most of them had very definite signs that they would soon be selected to join the service. Those who had not taken the advanced courses, and especially the engineers in this group, found themselves with excellent chances of postponements due to the great shortage of technically trained men. Of course the road to enlistment was open to any who chose to direct their after-graduation footsteps along such paths.

Lehigh professors became television stars. Bowing to popular demand Professors Trembley and Quirk directed their special talents to the viewers of TV and with remarkable success. Not to be outdone by members of the professorial staff, Lehigh undergraduates went in for their share of public performances. "Brigadoon" was the theme of a very successful Spring Music Festival. Mustard and Cheese came forth with several productions including "Yellow Jack" and "Game of Chess," the Glee Club travelled hither and yon; so in general Lehigh was well-represented in the public eye.

Students and faculty alike joined forces to bleed in Grace Hall for the Red Cross Blood Bank. Out of almost 800 pints pledged, there flowed approximately 61.75 gallons, enough to paint four ordinary houses a brilliant shade of red. According to reports, a few pints of a Royal blue tinge which would make an excellent trim were tapped out of amazed donors. Earlier in the school year Lehigh men, apparently cognizant of their duties as citizens, donated well over three thousand dollars to the Campus Chest, an organization similar to larger Community Chest programs. As a result of the successful administration of the program and the co-operation shown on the part of the student body as a whole, Lehigh's Campus Chest achieved a very commendable position among Pennsylvania colleges. This fact is evidenced by the many requests for information and suggestions that come into Campus Chest headquarters.

With an increased number of freshman cars and a general lack of parking facilities, the question of the campus' traffic problem came rather forcibly to the fore. Accentuated by on-campus accidents, something which had been singularly absent at Lehigh during the sojourn of the Class of '52, the problem grew and grew until many people began thinking rather seriously about it. IDC and Arcadia studied the problem with the aid of each other, statistics compiled from the Office of Buildings and Grounds, and personal observation and contact. Arcadia was against the banning of freshman cars on campus and IDC went on record as favoring the measure. Such a time! With several new factors presenting themselves and in the light of new discussion, the matter was reopened. Awareness of the gravity of the situation was shown when the grounds of the president's home, the near victim of a car in the dining room, were protected by a substantial concrete wall.

The academic scene had its profile altered when the College of Business Administration expanded its facilities to include courses which lead to the degrees of Master of Business Administration. Scholastically, the Class of '55 pulled a startling upset over their rivals of '54 by accumulating a point average over and above that of the sophomores. And industry donated several new scholarships to engineers in E.M., Met. E., and Ch. E. Ye Olde Valentines came out in the Fall as per usual; the Dean's Office outdid themselves by expressing their sentiments about academic progress in no less than 1089 courses. Some people never learn, it seems, as the final grades of the Fall '51 semester saw 79 of our fellows leaving South Mountain for circumstances not exactly of their immediate choosing.

When the news of the West Point cheating scandal reached the ears and inner sanctums of the "Frown and Bite," the editors made a valiant attempt to discover the way Lehigh men behaved during examinations. A questionnaire was submitted to the students via the pages of the campus newspaper, and ballot boxes were placed at strategic places to collect the results. Despite repeated urgings and requests, Lem Lehigh refused to disclose his most private affairs, particularly those pertaining to whether he gives or accepts aid during a University exercise. The newspaper (which has served as admirable source material for this article) startled many when it announced in October 26th issue (Fall Houseparty) "Break Lehigh Vice Racket." Evidently some did not accept the joke or perhaps they were unaware of the imaginative talents that abide in the basement of Drown Hall. Such a fuss was raised over the poor publicity the well-done issue could create that copies were distributed only on the campus—regular mail subscribers did not receive their papers.

Speaking of Houseparty—it was tremendous.

A new animal came to campus to complement the menagerie already begun by Prof. Quirk and the Dean's Office; it appeared under the cryptic title of SCBLH (Student Committee for the Betterment of Lamberton Hall) and soon showed its nature to be that of a student committee on a student committee. It is not at this writing quite clear just where the animal's natural habitat is but an investigation conducted under the auspices of the Biology Department uncovered strong evidence that it had migrated South from a region located somewhere in central New York State. Its debut created quite a stir among the undergraduates and administration as it was evident the creature had appeared for a very definite purpose. Shortly after it had begun its natural functions, however, SCBLH was mated with an official student committee to (it is hoped) the betterment of the race as a whole.

Politics was not entirely absent from the Lehigh scene as it appeared during the '51-'52 school year. B & W began running political cartoons and PSA, the Political Science Assembly, conducted a very well-run Lehigh Presidential Preference Poll. Supplemented by political advertising, columns in the newspaper, and visits to national campaign headquarters, the affair took on an aura of a party convention. Although no caucuses were held and no ward bosses put in an appearance, the poll did present many of the current national political feelings before Lehigh men and no doubt did much toward making some aware of the issues and responsibilities that confront a citizen of the United States. Lehigh students and faculty both "liked Ike" by a substantial vote; Taft, Warren, and Justice Douglas followed in popularity.

We beat Lafayette for the second year running.

Other unusual and noteworthy events took place. Dr. Frank J. Fornoff planned and constructed an illuminated periodic table, one of the few of its kind in the country. The device covered part of the wall in the front of the large Chemistry lecture room and was complete with a TILT located in the lower right hand corner. Also new and different was SCL's presentation of a very popular Jazz Concert, featuring Buddy Freeman and his band. This was somewhat of a departure from the usual rather conservative program presented by the group and was, in the opinion of many, a very welcome addition to the annual series of lectures and concerts.

Social activities? Legal authorities cut heavily into the available supply of recreation and fellowship when they imposed a severe age card check upon the Lehigh undergraduates who were often wont to gather in the hallowed halls of Bethlehem business establishments for relaxation, etc. IFC weekend in the early Spring also brought a new twist to the scheduled activities of the year's social calendar. Combining their annual pledge banquet with the Monte Carlo dance and an afternoon get-together at the 'Chor, IFC sponsored what in effect amounted to a little Houseparty.

We wound up our last year in a fitting manner. Saturday evening, June 14th, many of us attended the Graduation Ball. Sunday afternoon, the Rt. Rev. Oliver J. Hart, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, delivered our baccalaureate sermon in Packer Memorial Chapel. After the service, Dr. and Mrs. Whitaker entertained the members of the class and their families and friends at an afternoon tea in Grace Hall; many faculty members were there, too.

The climax of the final weekend came at the University Day exercises on Monday morning. Frank W. Abrams, Chairman of the Board of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey), delivered the commencement address. Approximately five hundred seniors received their long-awaited sheepskins.

To sum up in seven words—"A good time was had by all."

Yes, a good time was had by all despite the long assignments, the Sunday mornings that inevitably followed the Saturday nights, and thirty-one weeks of school. Maybe the senior year is not so very different after all; perhaps the fact that it marks the end of something is what causes it to stand out from among the others as unique. Some students breathed a sigh of relief when they received their June 16th red badge of courage, but there were many, and their ranks will be increased as the years pass by, who were more than a little bit sorry at leaving Lehigh. Let's hope that the incidents here recorded will help in some way to bring back the "good old college days" when we are gazing benevolently down upon our adoring great grandchildren as they ask with disbelief on their faces, "Did you really go to college?"

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

The Faculty of Lehigh University records with deep sorrow the passing, on June 4th, 1951, of Philip Mason Palmer, Dean Emeritus of the College of Arts and Science.

Dean Palmer was born on May 8th, 1880 in Westbrook, Maine and spent his early years in that state. He attended Bowdoin College where he won election to Phi Beta Kappa and was graduated in 1900 with the B.A. degree. His education was continued at Harvard University which awarded him the B.A. degree in 1902. He studied at Heidelberg University in 1906, in 1911, and in 1915, and at the University of Zurich in 1921-22. He was the recipient of honorary degrees from the University of Padua, Moravian College and Bowdoin College, the last only a year ago as a distinguished alumnus on the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation.

His long career at Lehigh University began in 1902 as Instructor in Modern Languages. He became Professor of Modern Languages in 1906, Professor and Head of the Department of German in 1910, and Director of the Curriculum in Arts and Science in 1921. In 1936 he was appointed Dean of the College of Arts and Science. He was Chairman of the Administrative Committee which conducted the affairs of the University in 1944-45. The first Hillman Award for outstanding service to Lehigh was presented to him in 1946. His retirement from active service as a member of the University Faculty occurred in June 1950.

All his life, Dean Palmer's work and hopes were for Lehigh. In a very special sense, the College of Arts and Science, as it exists today, has been his creation and is his monument. But his influence extended far beyond. There is no division of the University, no phase of its work or its organization, which did not in the course of his long career benefit from his vision, his wisdom, his uncompromising adherence to the highest ideals, his love for and his pride in Lehigh. In critical periods he was turned to spontaneously for guidance and inspiration. More than any other man of his generation he molded, in spirit and in substance, the character of this institution. To many generations of students and to his colleagues he has left the memory of a teacher of high standards and sympathetic understanding, of a wise and willing counsellor, of a helpful friend, of a cultured gentleman.

Alfred Copeland Callen

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

The Faculty of Lehigh University regrets to learn of the death, on July 30, 1951, of Alfred Copeland Callen, Head of the Department of Mining Engineering.

Professor Callen was born on July 1, 1888 in Pen Argyl, Pennsylvania and spent his early years in Reading and Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. He earned two degrees from Lehigh University, an E.M. in 1909 and an M.S. in 1911. He was elected a member of Tau Beta Pi as an undergraduate.

While pursuing graduate work from 1909 to 1911, he served as an Instructor in Physics and in Mining Engineering. After three years in industrial work he returned to educational work as an Instructor in Mining Engineering at the University of Illinois. In 1917 he went to West Virginia University as Director of the School of Mines and Professor of Mining Engineering. He was appointed Head of the Department of Mining and Metallurgy and Professor of Mining Engineering at the University of Illinois in 1924. In 1939 he returned to Lehigh University. He was Dean of the College of Engineering from 1939 to 1943, and Professor and Head of the Department of Mining Engineering from 1939 to 1951. He was a member of the Administrative Committee which conducted the affairs of the University in 1944-45. He was an active participant in engineering education, serving on many of the Engineering Council for Professional Development committees on curricula accrediting. Professionally he was internationally known.

Professor Callen was civic minded. His work on the Ration Board and with the Salvation Army are but two of his many civic activities. He was a member of the Kiwanis International, serving as District Governor for the Illinois and Eastern Iowa District in 1930, International Trustee from 1932 to 1936, and as International President in 1936-37. He held membership in many Masonic orders and was a thirty-third degree Mason.

The influence of a teacher is determined always by what he is and what he stands for. Professor Callen's ethical code was high and inflexible, it was never compromised. His academic standards were strict. His interest in his students both as undergraduates and alumni was keen and consistent, their welfare was paramount in his thinking. On his colleagues, students, and friends, Professor Callen leaves an indelible imprint of his greatness of character and his leadership in academic, professional, and civic affairs.

Robert Metcalf Smith

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

The Faculty of Lehigh University records with deep sorrow the death, on January 15, 1952, of Robert Metcalf Smith, for many years the Head of the Department of English.

Born in Worcester, Massachusetts, on March 29, 1886, Professor Smith was a descendant of a long line of Pilgrim ancestors. In keeping with his New England background, he attended Amherst College, whence he was graduated in 1908. He received his master's degree from Columbia University in 1909, his doctorate in 1915. During the next decade there followed a varied career in teaching at numerous colleges and universities, including the University of Minnesota, Westminster College, the United States Naval Academy, Drury College, and the University of Wyoming. In 1925, Lehigh's newly appointed President Richards, reorganizing and strengthening the University, appointed Professor Smith as Head of the Department of English and laid upon him the charge of developing and strengthening the work in that field; and for twenty-six years, until last July when he was retired from his administrative responsibilities, he exercised his unusual administrative acumen to the lasting benefit of the Department and of the University. Fittingly, in 1950, on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his appointment as Head of the Department, the University honored him with the Hillman Award for his outstanding service.

As a teacher, Professor Smith has impressed generations of his students, undergraduate and graduate alike, with the trenchancy and force of his mind. He was a disciplinarian of the old school, with no patience for mental laziness or intellectual indifference. The students who endured the rigors and academic disciplines to which he subjected them came to have a thorough understanding of what is meant by the life of the mind. To many of them he became a lifelong guide, philosopher, and friend.

As a scholar, his chief contributions were in the fields of bibliography and of Shakespeare. He was prominent in the activities of the Shakespeare Society of Philadelphia and the Shakespeare Association of America. For three years, from 1947 to 1950, he served with great success as Editor of the Shakespeare Quarterly, the official journal of the Shakespeare Association of America. His published works have demonstrated that he knew more about the First Folio of Shakespeare, called "the most important English book ever published," than any other living man. His international reputation as a Shakespearean brought credit and distinction to our University; and the strength of his personality and character will make him long remembered on our campus and wherever his influence has gone forth.

Alpha Epsilon Delta

Alpha Epsilon Delta, the national honorary pre-medical society, was founded at the University of Alabama in 1926. During its first twenty-five years the society has enjoyed many successes and has expanded into an organization of sixty-one chapters with more than ten thousand members. Pennsylvania Alpha at Lehigh is the oldest of the five chapters in the state.

Alpha Epsilon Delta is an active, rather than a static, honorary society; we are not a "banquet and key" organization. In our selection of members we stress such criteria as interest, personality, character and ability to cooperate with others, as well as high scholastic attainment. Alpha Epsilon Delta makes every effort to work in close conjunction with the R. W. Hall Pre-Medical Society, feeling that as an honor society it is our responsibility to render service to pre-medical students in general. Many of our meetings are open to all interested students. The programs in our regular monthly meetings include the presentation of papers by the members, films on biological subjects, and, at least once a year, a discussion of pre-medical education and medical school requirements. During the past year we also instituted the custom of having monthly dinner meetings, with guest speakers chosen from among local physicians.

Through the efforts of the Department of Air Science and Tactics, the Arnold Air Society Squadron at Lehigh University was organized in the Spring of 1951. Six Advanced Air Force ROTC cadets were selected as charter members. These men became the first officers of the organization and named it the Cheli Squadron in honor of Major Ralph Cheli, Lehigh '41, who was posthumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for his extraordinary devotion to duty, leadership, and courage during an attack on the Japanese in New Guinea in August 1945.

The purpose of the society is to further the mission of the Air Force at the university level by encouraging teamwork and expanding technical knowledge not offered in the classroom. To accomplish this program, the Cheli Squadron initiated thirteen pledges to membership at a ceremony and banquet in May, 1951.

During the Fall of 1951, the Arnold Air Society sponsored the Air Force Drill Team under the leadership of Cadet Major G. Curtis Kline III and also offered a class in the use of the voice in commands for Advanced Cadets. An excellent lecture on the development of high velocity aircraft was presented at an open meeting of the Society by Captain Philip Woodroffe of the Air Force ROTC staff. In the Spring Semester, a second pledge class was initiated and further projects were undertaken with lectures, demonstrations, films, and discussions.

Cyanide, the junior class leadership honor society, has as its principal purpose the organization and guidance of authorized freshman activities. Composed of twenty members and directed by Chaplain George Bean, faculty adviser, plus a faculty circle of three members, the society meets at least once a month to iron out the difficulties and problems of first-year men at Lehigh as well as to plan and organize freshmen activities.

Perhaps the most outstanding project of Cyanide during the year was the formalization of a freshman class cabinet. Without a cabinet, a freshman would have to wait until near the end of his first year at Lehigh before the Arcadia and class elections would give him any voice in Lehigh affairs. Under the cabinet system, a new class within six weeks after the start of school elects class representatives who, along with Cyanide members, comprise a cabinet through which freshmen can air their problems and propose activities.

Among the other Cyanide activities was the traditional Tug-of-War between the frosh of Lehigh and Lafayette, which the Brown and White freshmen won. In addition to this, Cyanide joined other campus organizations in staging the Lafayette pep rally, which included freshmen skits, a gigantic bon-fire, and the traditional pajama parade.

Cyanide was never at a loss for work during the year. For the students entering Lehigh both in the summer and in September, there was a Freshman Orientation Week and an information booth maintained by the group.

Delta Omicron Theta, honorary debating society, has enjoyed a long history of successful debating. Through its participation in dual and packet debates and tournaments, it has competed against such eastern colleges as Temple, New York University, University of Vermont, University of Pennsylvania, Rutgers, and many others.

This year was highlighted by the Debating Association of Pennsylvania Colleges Tournament, which was on the campus for the first time in the history of the school. Forty-two colleges from the entire state participated. An innovation which met with much success was the entertaining of the visiting delegates by the Mustard and Cheese production of "Yellow Jack".

The debate program for the school year began with intense preparation embodying intra-club debates and guest speakers from the faculty. For the novices, men without previous inter-collegiate debate experience, the season began with a successful 6-won 2-lost at the Temple Novice Tournament in December. Packet debates for the varsity were held, such as the December contest with Albright, Bucknell and Lafayette as opponents.

Spring brought the usual round of tournaments with the addition of the Johns Hopkins Tournament. The others were the Brooklyn College and Benjamin Franklin Tournaments and the Penn State Debaters Convention.

Debate has as its purpose the training of the individual student in reasoned discourse effected through practice speaking and reflective thinking. This training in reasoned discourse has proven invaluable to DOT's members who have started careers in business and industry.

Eta Kappa Nu

Brilliantly colored coolie hats and mysteriously flashing light bulbs identify initiates of Eta Kappa Nu once each semester. These men, whose high scholarship and outstanding personal traits have made them eligible for election into the electrical engineering honorary, assume the responsibility for upholding the principles and purposes of Eta Kappa Nu as established in 1904 at the University of Illinois by a group headed by Maurice L. Carr.

The main purpose of this society, as conceived by its founders, is to aid its members throughout their lives to become better citizens and better men in their chosen profession. This is achieved, in part, by helping members and non-members alike to improve the standards of the electrical engineering profession and to improve the courses of study in the institutions where its chapters are established.

Chi chapter of Eta Kappa Nu was founded at Lehigh in 1926. Since that time it has served to stimulate and to reward exemplary scholarship in the Electrical Engineering curriculum. Its main social activity has been the sponsorship, in coordination with the student branches of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Institute of Radio Engineers, of the "all EE" picnic, when the bars of the electrical engineering department are let down and faculty and students turn out full force for an afternoon of goodwill and fun.

During the current year Lambda Mu Sigma, Lehigh's honorary marketing fraternity, continued in its activities to promote the ideals specified by its constitution—furthering practical knowledge of marketing practices, promoting a spirit of closer friendship between faculty and student body, and furthering closer cooperation between student life and private enterprise.

To carry out these aims Lambda Mu Sigma holds monthly meetings and sponsors field trips. One field trip was conducted through the New York Stock Exchange. Another trip was made through Hess Brothers in Allentown. Among the speakers who addressed the fraternity during the year were: Mr. Robert N. Garner, vice-president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and Professor A. N. Dunlap of the International Relations Department of Lehigh University.

Along with these activities, Lambda Mu Sigma has undertaken a new project this year. The fraternity has sponsored educational films on marketing and related subjects which were viewed by classes in Marketing, Sales, Sales Management, Retailing, and Advertising. This activity was greeted with gratifying approval by both students and faculty members.

Members of Lambda Mu Sigma are selected on the basis of scholastic achievement in marketing subjects and cumulative standing in the College of Business Administration.

The Newtonian Society is an honorary society for freshmen who attain a 3.5 average or better in freshman mathematics. It was founded at Lehigh in 1927 by two professors of mathematics and was originally limited to math majors who had secured the necessary scholastic average.

The Society became inactive during the war years but was reorganized in 1946. At this time the constitution was revised to include engineering and business freshmen among those eligible for membership.

The aims of the society are to promote interest in mathematics among members of the freshman class, to extend friendship among students and faculty members, to give its members enlarged views of the field of mathematics, and to provide intellectual opportunities outside the classroom.

Meetings are held once a month with a guest speaker invited to speak informally on some phase of mathematics. The speaker is usually a faculty member but occasionally a student member of the society assumes the role. Speakers during the past year included Dr. Shook who spoke on "Solution of Equations by Continued Approximation" and Dr. Cutler who talked about "Ovals."

The idea that all-round leadership in college should be recognized and that outstanding students and faculty members should meet on a basis of mutual interest and understanding led to the founding of Omicron Delta Kappa at Washington and Lee University in 1914.

Omicron Delta Kappa

Ni Circle, one of 74 throughout the nation, carries out these purposes of ODK. Membership in the society is elective upon application by undergraduates, and elective upon nomination for faculty, administration, and alumni. Membership is based upon meritorious attainments in the five basic phases of campus life: scholarship; athletics; leadership in governmental, social, and religious affairs; publications; and speech, music, and dramatic arts. Thus, Omicron Delta Kappa recognizes high standard attainments by all members of the University family and provides for a common meeting ground where, through informed and frank discussion, improvement in faculty-student relationships may be fostered and projects for the betterment of university life carried out.

At Lehigh, each new member presents an outline of a project for the Circle to consider. Discussion of these projects by the Circle brings forth many worthwhile ideas on current University problems. These ideas may be used by ODK itself, by some other campus group that may carry out an ODK project, or by the individual members in their various campus jobs. Just a few of the problems discussed this way in 1951 are a better social life for dorm men and freshmen, an organized tutoring system, improved student-alumni relations, and a set of ideal goals for Lehigh men.

Pershing Rifles

Under the capable leadership of Captain James H. Herman, Company Commander, and Captain Paul B. Walters, Faculty Adviser, Company F-5 has participated in many activities this year. One of these has been ushering at all the home football games. This is the third year that the Pershing Rifle Company at Lehigh has acted in this capacity.

Last year, a crack drill team was trained which used functional whistle commands instead of voice commands. The drill team traveled to the Third Annual National Invitational Drill Meet, held at the University of Illinois on March 10, 1951, and won second place in the Crack Drill Competition. Company F-5 trained a similar drill team this year.

On November 11, 1950, an Armistice Day Ceremony was held in Bethlehem, sponsored by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Company F-5 sent twenty-five men to participate in the ceremony, and again repeated the same thing this year.

Each Spring a Military Ball is held at Lehigh University. Last year Company F-5 performed its Crack Drill routine during the intermission period and participated at the Military Ball again this Spring in the same capacity.

During November, 1951, Company F-5 pledged sixty-eight new men, which brought the company strength up to ninety-five men. With this large group, the year has been one of the most successful in the organization's history.

Phi Beta Kappa, the oldest of all Greek letter fraternities, was founded at William and Mary College, in Williamsburg, Va., in 1776. It was originally a social and literary society, but comparatively early in its history it developed into an honorary fraternity which gives recognition to undergraduate students who have excelled in studies designed principally to lead to a knowledge, understanding, and appreciation of the world in which we live.

During the first century of its existence, the growth of the society was slow. By 1881 there were twenty active chapters. The individual chapters were located in the north-eastern section of the United States and were largely autonomous. In 1885 the national organization, the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa, was established with the purpose of effecting a closer union between the chapters and of assuring high and uniform standards in the chartering of new chapters and in the election of members. Today there are 151 chapters, spread throughout the whole country.

Membership in Phi Beta Kappa has long been recognized as one of the outstanding scholastic honors which a student may receive. The influence of the fraternity has done much to raise the standards of American collegiate education.

The Beta Chapter of Pennsylvania was installed at Lehigh in April, 1887, through the influence of several members of the faculty who themselves belonged to the Society and felt the need for its influence on the Lehigh campus. Membership is offered each year to outstanding seniors who have shown unusual excellence in liberal studies. The task of selecting new members falls upon a chapter council of faculty members. Besides selecting men from the Arts and Business Colleges and the curricula in chemistry and physics, the council may, in any one academic year, offer membership to not more than four seniors from the technical curricula.

The following seniors, members of the class of 1951 were initiated as members in course in May, 1951:

Leonard J. Bachman	John B. Longenhagen

Phi Eta Sigma, the national freshman honor society for men, was founded at the University of Illinois on March 22, 1925. The purpose of the society is defined as the encouragement and rewarding of high scholastic achievement among freshmen men in the nation's colleges. The organization has grown rapidly, and today boasts over seventy chapters and forty thousand members. Phi Eta Sigma carries on an active program of service. Each year the local chapters distribute "Hints on How to Study" pamphlets to incoming freshmen, and provide special tutoring to all who desire additional help in their studies. In addition, each local chapter serves its school in any way which seems suitable for that particular institution. The Lehigh chapter, for example, helps Arcadia conduct the faculty evaluation program.

Lehigh's chapter of Phi Eta Sigma, one of only four in Pennsylvania, was founded on May 15, 1950, through the efforts of Professor Harold V. Anderson of the Department of Chemistry. The Lehigh chapter, which was the eighteenth chapter established in the nation, initiated a group of eleven men at that time. These men qualified because: (1) their first semester freshmen average was at least 5.50, or (2) their first year average was 5.50 or above. In 1949 Professor Anderson, who has been the chapter's only faculty adviser, donated a permanent cup to be awarded each year to the freshmen dormitory section with the highest composite average.

Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary journalism fraternity, was founded at Syracuse University in 1909. Eleven years later a chapter was organized at Lehigh, and today the fraternity is active in colleges and universities throughout the country.

The purpose of Pi Delta Epsilon is to provide a means of achieving coordination and harmonious relationships among the leaders in campus publications. These men, through membership in Pi Delt, are able to meet and discuss problems confronting them in their work as well as methods for improving school publications.

At the first meeting of Pi Delta Epsilon last September, elections were held to choose the officers for the ensuing school year. The first major problem facing the fraternity at that time was the anticipated pledging of new men for membership. A very successful rushing campaign was then carried out, and in November twenty top men in Lehigh journalism were initiated.

With the aid of these new men, the members of Pi Delta Epsilon carried through with two important projects: the collection of used Christmas cards for crippled children under the care of the National Cerebral Palsy Foundation, and preparation of the annual Lehigh Blotter.

Pennsylvania Omicron Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science honor society, was organized on the Lehigh campus on May 7, 1948. Pi Gamma Mu has as its major objectives the encouragement and recognition of scholarly achievement in, and the effective synthesis of, the various branches of social science. Membership is open to any junior or senior who has attained an average of 3.5 in twenty hours of social science.

The fall initiation banquet was held in November at the Hotel Bethlehem. Several initiates presented papers on the topic: "Has there been a lessening of morality in government?"

At the December meeting, the discussion centered on "The Rearmament of Germany." Dr. Gilbert E. Doan, Professor of Metallurgy, introduced the topic; student speakers then discussed the positive and negative aspects of German rearmament.

A meeting devoted to a study of the rise of the Communist government in China was held in March. The speaker for the evening was Arthur Yoshi Chen, a member of the Chinese Consular Service before the disintegration of the Nationalist government.

A joint initiation banquet of chapters in Southeastern Pennsylvania was organized by the Lehigh chapter and held at Albright College on April 25rd. Pi Gamma Mu's National President, Dr. W. Leon Godshall, Professor of International Relations at Lehigh, spoke on "World Government—A Fanciful Utopia."

In 1927 the Lehigh Theta Chapter of Pi Tau Sigma was formally instituted as the ninth chapter to be founded since the society began in 1915.

The purpose of Pi Tau Sigma is to foster the high ideals of the engineering profession, to stimulate interest in and coordinate departmental activities, to promote the mutual professional welfare of its members, and to develop in students of mechanical engineering the attributes necessary for effective leadership and the assumption of responsibilities of a citizen in a democracy. Advanced students in mechanical and industrial engineering who show real interest and marked ability in their field of study, leadership qualities, and outstanding personality are selected for membership in Pi Tau Sigma.

Activities of the society include monthly business meetings at which regular business is discussed and transacted, banquets in Spring and Fall honoring the newly elected members, and the awarding of a "Mechanical Engineer's Handbook" and a "Production Handbook" to the highest ranking freshmen in mechanical and industrial engineering, respectively.

The Pi Tau Sigma Lounge in Packard Laboratory is furnished and maintained by the Lehigh Theta Chapter. This lounge is open to all students for relaxation and study during the day and is available to all organizations for meetings and smokers during the evening.

With the increasing military activity in the country today, interest and participation in the collegiate ROTC program are rapidly growing. Scabbard and Blade, national honorary military society for advanced ROTC students, is profiting greatly from this interest.

Company "H" of the Third Regiment was founded at Lehigh in 1922. The society has been active on our campus every year since its founding except for the period 1945-47 when the ROTC program was temporarily inactive.

The high point of our past year was the Military Ball on May 19. With various weapons and other equipment supplying a military atmosphere, the well-attended affair was an encouraging success. Preparations for the dance this year were directed toward making it one of the big social events on the University calendar, a position it held in pre-war days.

Annually we furnish ushers and a color guard for the memorial services held in Packer Chapel. The trophy awarded each year by the Society to the most outstanding senior ROTC cadet has come to be a highly cherished honor at Lehigh.

Frequently our semi-monthly meetings are highlighted by a guest speaker and the informal discussion that follows. The Society plans to extend its operations in the near future to include projects of the service nature about the University.

Lehigh's chapter of Tau Beta Pi was the initial chapter of the national engineering honorary, which now has 92 chapters in leading technical schools throughout the country. The Pennsylvania Alpha chapter was established by Prof. E. H. Williams, Jr. in 1885 to provide a means of recognizing worthy men in the technical branches of education.

At present the local chapter consists of thirty-nine undergraduate members—all juniors and seniors. Men in the upper eighth of the junior class and men in the upper fifth of the senior class are eligible for election, but scholarship is not the sole basis of selection. After the scholastic requirements have been fulfilled, the selection is based on "integrity, breadth of interest both inside and outside of engineering, adaptability, and unselfish activity."

At Lehigh, Tau Beta Pi sponsors an annual slide rule instruction course for freshmen early in the Fall, offers a prize for the highest ranking freshman engineer, and recently has developed and administered, on a limited scale, a tutoring system covering certain freshman engineering courses. It is hoped that, after a sufficient trial period, the idea may be extended first to all freshman courses and finally to the university as a whole.

Arcadia is the student governing body of Lehigh University. Elected once each school year near the beginning of the spring semester, the fifteen Arcadians carry out the two major types of function of the group—administrative and representative. Arcadia is representative in that it provides a medium for formulating and expressing student opinions on University matters. By virtue of the campus-wide elections, every student is given the opportunity to cast his vote for the man or men he feels can best serve his interests. The Hare System of Proportional Representation, better known as preferential balloting, assures each student that his vote will be counted in electing an Arcadia representative.

Arcadia

The administrative duties of the student council are concerned with carrying out the activities of standing and temporary committees. One of the criteria of a good student government is the degree to which it is capable of taking an active part in the formulation of general University policy. The four student-faculty committees: Disciplinary, Student Activities, Student Club Finance, and the Board of Publications Committees all insure the students that their voices are heard in each of these phases of campus life.

Arcadia is an evolving organization, striving constantly better to fulfill its two chief duties. Each Arcadia is presented with the opportunity to take steps to benefit the students and to enhance its own position. This year's group, headed by Gene Howie, and under the wise guidance of its faculty adviser, Dr. Herbert M. Diamond, has undertaken several special projects. Included among these are: the new social event clearing house, a general review of the registration procedure, a houseparty parking system, a freshman orientation system, recording and distribution of a Lehigh songs album, and a regular committee to handle such items as parking, the general traffic problem, and campus conditions as a whole. In addition to these (and several other) new activities, this year's Arcadia has successfully completed its regular duties—faculty appraisal, campus chest, Lafayette Pep Rally, and many others.

Regardless of the effort put forth by each member of Arcadia, and regardless of the achievements the student government may attain, there are two factors without which it cannot be successful—student interest and cooperation. Arcadia meetings are always open to all members of the student body, and any undergraduate who has formally declared his intention one week ahead of time must be heard at a meeting. Only with the aid of a genuine interest from the students can Arcadia really attain its goal—that of being truly representative.

Class of 1953

After three years on the Lehigh campus, the Class of '53 has established itself as one of the University's most progressive groups. For the first time in recent years, the Spring Houseparty dance was taken over by the juniors as a class project. This function was carried out by the Interfraternity council in the past, and it was the opinion of the class officers that the profits of running the dance should benefit the entire student body. This will be possible if the succeeding classes follow up the plan and the houseparty dances are handled by the junior and senior classes in the future.

In addition to the houseparty dance, the juniors continued the project of selling tickets to one of the Bethlehem motion picture theaters, receiving a return to bolster the treasury. A smoker was held and a class picnic, another new class activity, was organized in the spring.

The junior cabinet, a group of students chosen at the beginning of the year, assisted the officers in carrying out the various class projects. Cyanide, the junior honorary society, conducted the proceedings for the newly organized freshman cabinet. The cabinet was established for the first time this year as a basis on which the Class of '55 will build its future class organizations.

The Lehigh sports scene was enhanced by the juniors on the various athletic squads. The varsity football and wrestling teams, including many members of the Class of '55, turned in good season records, and all of the other major athletic squads included juniors on the roster.

The class is looking forward to its final year on Old South Mountain, when it will take over the position of leadership which the seniors traditionally hold. The first class to live in the dormitories as a group, the juniors have not lost the unity which they acquired as freshmen. Undoubtedly there will be many challenges to be met next year, but the Class of '55 is confident that it will be equal to all of them.

Class of 1954

Last April we elected the officers who were to lead us through our Sophomore year: Phil Byrnes, president, Ron Madison, vice-president; Dick Snyder, secretary; John Cable, treasurer. However, Phil left school before September, and Ron Madison stepped up into the president's chair. Consequently, George Lemmon, who had been third in preferential voting, joined the ranks as the new vice-president.

Under the direction of our revised executive staff and with the assistance of Dr. Adolf Grunbaum, our amiable faculty adviser, a new and unique class cabinet system was instituted. Briefly, the plan was as follows: "Directly responsible to the officers is a senior cabinet, composed of fourteen men from sections of various living groups. Each senior cabinet member has under him a group of junior cabinet members proportional to the number of students in his section. These junior cabinet members keep in contact with approximately ten students. In other words, every student has a personal part in the functioning of the class."

Our first big class function was the Snowball, held in Grace Hall, on December 8. Matt's music and the elaborate decorations drew a crowd that boosted the treasury an additional $500, setting a new record for profits netted at any comparable dance.

Participation in all phases of Lehigh life has been exhibited by the Sophomore Class, including Varsity sports, clubs and debating groups, honorary fraternities and student government.

Madison, Snyder, Lemmon, Cable.

The Class of '54 has shown increasing unification during the past two years, due partly to the present cabinet system and the desire to have a unified class. Cooperation was outstandingly demonstrated during the preparation for the Snowball.

We look forward with confidence to taking our places as upper classmen, hoping that we can live up to Lehigh's standards and perhaps even set an example for classes of the future.

Class of 1955

This year, for the first time, the Epitome has included a review of the activities of the freshman class, in recognition of the increasing part freshmen are playing in university affairs.

Among the many new developments in the relationship of the freshman to the University was the inauguration of two new institutions designed to integrate the new freshman more effectively into college life, and to give him a chance for early development of leadership. These institutions were the Freshman Orientation Program and the Freshman Cabinet.

Fostered by Tom MacCabe of Arcadia, the Freshman Orientation Program required each freshman to devote one hour a week for the first three weeks of the year to periods of group discussion in which questions about all phases of university life were taken up. An important feature of the program was that classes were conducted by upper-classmen chosen for their ability as leaders in campus activities.

The second of these new institutions was the Freshman Cabinet. The cabinet is composed of one freshman elected from each living group, and its meetings are led by an executive committee of two members of Cyanide. The Freshman Cabinet has aided a great deal in such matters as the Lehigh-Lafayette Tug-of-War, the Pre-Lafayette game bonfire, the pajama parade, etc.

WLRN grew, in 1951-52, as would a careless, middle-age woman. The station got both older and became a little broader, as the difficult job of quality control was undertaken.

Well-staffed with many eager freshmen and the usual staff of seasoned cellar-dwellers, broadcasting was carried on nine hours each day—five hours of rebroadcasted FM and four hours of live programming. This offered training for every department, as the engineers ran the “board,” program men did the shows, and the business staff kept the creditors from the door.

With the greatest part of actual construction completed, time was devoted to “polishing” scripts, equipment, advertising techniques, and of course the plate glass windows. The new studio, “C”, was officially broken in and now complements the disc jockey and drama strongholds.

Music, sports and news made up the bulk of program material, while “productions” emanated from Christmas-Saucon Hall and Studio A.

Entering the fifth year of competition with electronics, WLRN upheld the following traditions: that the shows-must-go-on; that the station enables students to learn how to operate a radio station through cooperative activities; and that WLRN is designed to benefit the students of Lehigh University. These lessons the personnel learned well.

Brown and White

Each week it takes 110 students, $450, countless man-hours, and large quantities of sweat and profanity to serve the Lehigh family with 7000 copies of the semi-weekly Brown and White.

One year's output of B&W's laid end to end from Drown Hall's mail box would reach the Town Hall steps in Claggettsburg, Maryland—129 miles as the crow flies, and it is our aim to furnish our readers from here to Claggettsburg with the best possible 10,000 words of news, features, sports, editorials, and even ads, in each issue.

To facilitate and accomplish this aim, the B&W introduced many innovations in the fall of 1951.

Drown Hall newsroom was face-lifted and arranged along more functional lines. The "flag" used in 1956, the last time the paper won All-American, was brought back.

The photo department bought a costly Strobolite attachment to enable the photographers to catch action while it is still action. Sports Department instituted a football guessing contest with prizes for the students who picked the largest number of winners each week. News Department resumed Mountain-views as a weekly feature.

Cartoons drawn by Pulitzer Prize winner, Herb Block, were contracted for to brighten up our editorial pages. Balanced make-up—long sought—was at last achieved. The first three-column flag in history was used.

Even a deadline was established with the hopes of providing crisper copy, better copyreading, etc., and finishing before midnight.

With these improvements, all the B&W needed was a plethora of news, ads, and God's help in providing them.

During the first half of the fall semester, celebrities like Harkness, Churchill's cousin, and three-star generals came, spoke, and were usually covered.

Once in a while an astonisher came along. Lehigh upset Rutgers, Deans and Faculty collided over an objet d'art, and the torrid Miss Flame made a personal appearance in the newsroom to plug Fire Prevention.

Campaigns were few. The Pechan Non-Disloyalty Oath was fought. Lehigh was urged to stay in the Middle Three and keep Rutgers on the schedule. A safety campaign was initiated and run successfully.

Squabbles were fewer. Deans, as usual, questioned our accuracy, and, as usual, they were proven inaccurate.

Monotony was broken by the Houseparty issue. The hoax took in two Pennsylvania daily papers, Rutgers, Yale, Gettysburg, and so many parents that Circulation had to hold up the mailing. Tabloid-bannered issues screaming, "SMASH LEHIGH VICE RING," with stories of wholesale drug addiction on campus and of 'oovermen 'itting 'eroine 'appy 'ypo 'abitudes, piled up in the Circulation room.

Pictures told many a story themselves. The dean, art prof, tiger, and bird episode. Tom Gunn's catch of the year that beat NYU in the final seconds, the front page "jail scene" of the Houseparty edition, were all highlights captured by the flashbulbs.

Behind the scenes in the creation of the 1952 EPITOME were many hours of planning, layout, checking, proofreading, and coordination. As deadlines began to slide by, "coordination" came to mean indoctrinating all concerned with the battle-cry, "It's gotta be done!" But this carried a double meaning: do it, and do it well.

Work on the '52 book began as the class was thinking about Junior exams and the vacation ahead. Before the close of school in June, most of the staff members were chosen; printing, engraving and photography contracts were signed; a budget was set up; and the general layout of the book was planned.

During Fall registration, Seniors met EPITOME in action and were signed up on a tight schedule of portrait photography. The schedule worked fine, except for the inevitable "no-shows" that had to be tracked down, ferreted out, and coerced into appearing for a picture. However, welcome female assistance livened the day when the photographer's results were sized and pasted on make-up board for the engraver.

A lonely one-man job was the writing of histories, both of the University and of the current year's activities, innovations among recent EPITOMES.

In addition to keeping financial records, men on the business staff were engaged in short selling—selling a book that had not yet been produced. Others were drumming up national and local advertising. Still others were persuading all the clubs, living groups and activities to be represented in the book into signing and paying for their EPITOME contracts.

Gathering material for living groups, activities, and sports involved contacting, recontacting, and recontacting again all the various sources of such information about the campus. But putting that material together in layout and editing was the real work, the self-expression and individuality that allows each member of the staff to see his touch in the book.

Such have been the activities of the EPITOME staff during the past year: work tedious but interesting, full of headaches and reward, but an experience that none of us would do without. We hope that the result is a yearbook that will ever remind you of your sojourn at Lehigh—an EPITOME that will be of greater value to you with each passing year.

Climaxing a highly successful concert season for the spring of 1951, which included a concert tour of local high schools and the Music Festival, the Brown and White Band staged its second annual "Pops" Concert. To a background of candlelight and checkered cloth covered tables, the Band, Cliff Clefs, and inter-living group singing finalists featured a program of popular and semi-popular music. Following the concert, dance music was provided by the Collegians.

Last fall, Professor Schempf put us through the usual strenuous paces of half-time drills and routines, maintaining the fine reputation acquired over the years. The Band set a precedent by attending a camp at Downington, Pennsylvania, during the four days of registration for the fall semester. We brushed up on "tone, tactics, and technique" in preparation for marching season. We also enjoyed the advantages of a summer camp.

The Brown and White Band followed the football team to Delaware, Rutgers, and Muhlenberg, but was unable to make trips to Carnegie Tech and Gettysburg. The highlight of the marching season came between halves of the houseparty football game when we serenaded the girls with a medley of Victor Herbert favorites.

Our activities for spring semester included the annual band concert in February and participation in the Music Festival in April. The year's activities ended once again with the "Pops" Concert.

Chapel Choir

The Chapel Choir has come a long way since its inception six years ago through the efforts of Chaplain George Bean. Composed of about forty voices, the Choir provides the vocal music for the Sunday services in Packer Memorial Chapel and also acts as the nucleus of a larger organization known as the University Chorale, which includes the Student Nurses' Chorus of Saint Luke's Hospital.

The director of both of these active organizations is Mr. George L. Gansz, Instructor of Music, and also Organist of the Chapel. Besides the regular Sunday morning services, the Choir sang at the Founder's Day Service in October, and the Chorale presented an Easter Cantata, which was recorded and broadcasted.

High enthusiasm among the members of the Choir is promoted by a social program, under the guiding hand of Mr. Gansz, which this year included combined rehearsals with the Saint Luke's Nurses Chorus followed by dancing and refreshments, a hay ride, skating parties, carolling at Christmas, and a most enjoyable picnic for the Chorale at the end of the season.

The Combined Music Clubs is composed of four musical organizations coordinated by one constitution and an advisory committee. The Glee Club, Orchestra, Cliff Clefs and Collegians also combine with the University Band to present the annual Spring Music Festival. The President, David Ryerson, works with Professor William Schempf, George Gansz, and the student directors of the various groups in planning the musical productions for the year. Though subordinated under one head, each group has its own individualities and accomplishments.

ORCHESTRA

Although still small in size, the Orchestra performed quite capably and presented several very fine programs. Participation in the annual Christmas Vespers Service in Packer Memorial Chapel, along with the Lehigh and Moravian Glee Clubs, marked the group's first appearance. They presented two concerts as part of the Sunday Recital Series, sponsored by the Music Department. The first concert, on March 16, 1952, featured Miss Shirley Sundberg, flutist of Bethlehem, as guest soloist. David Ryerson, pianist for the Glee Club, was the soloist for the second concert on May 11, 1952. The Lehigh Orchestra also participated in the annual Spring Music Festival, playing the orchestral parts to "Brigadoon".

GLEE CLUB

Lehigh's ever-popular Glee Club rose to new heights with an extremely successful season under the inspiring direction of Professor William Schempf, assisted by George Gansz.

The first event of the season was a three-day trip in November to Western Pennsylvania, beginning with a concert at the Base Chapel of Olmsted Air Force Base in Middletown, Pa. Continuing to Pittsburgh, the Glee Club sang for the Lehigh Alumni Club in the smoky city, and presented a concert during the intermission of a dance at Pennsylvania College for Women. To climax the week-end, the Club went to the Lehigh-Carnegie Tech football game and rendered Lehigh songs to the spectators at half-time.

The traditional and beautiful Christmas Vesper Service was given in the newly redecorated Packer Memorial Chapel to an overflowing congregation who listened in reverence to the Christmas Carols sung by the combined glee clubs of Lehigh and Moravian College for Women and accompanied by the University Orchestra.

Four major undertakings highlighted the Spring semester. The warblers produced a half-hour television show in Philadelphia on February 14, 1952. The Club combined with the Cedar Crest College Glee Club in March to present a program in Packer Memorial Chapel in dedication of the new organ. Grace Hall was the scene of the fifth annual Spring Music Festival held in April. Last, but hardly least, the Glee Club recorded another record album as a vivid memory of another fine year of vocal music at Lehigh.

CLIFF CLEFS

The Cliff Clefs, directed by George Gansz and specializing in rhythmic hushed-tone melodies, are now a well-established musical organization at Lehigh. Consisting of sixteen singers, the Clefs entertained audiences from Pittsburgh to New Jersey. Along with the singers were the musical aggregation known as the "combo", which included Rudy Schubert on the piano, Gus Economy on the electric guitar and Hank Clauson at the string bass. In addition to these instrumentalists, the Cliff Clefs added a dixieland group this year which was a hit from the start.

The Clefs appeared along with the Glee Club on musical engagements and in the Spring Music Festival. They also undertook programs of their own such as the Haver-town Lions Club banquet at the Bala Country Club in Philadelphia, fifteen minute radio shows over station WGPA-FM, and singing during intermissions at dances, both at Lehigh and at neighboring women's colleges.

COLLEGIANS

With Ralph Elliot as Student Director, the Collegians got off to an early start this fall playing for the Freshman Week mixer and the Faculty reception. During the winter season the swingsters played for several dances. The year was brought to a close in May with the band participating in the annual Lehigh "Pops" Concert.

Unique was the word for the 1952 Music Festival, presented in Grace Hall on April 18 and 19. Combining ability for organization, technical skill, and musical talent, the students of Lehigh produced a show unlike any other musical production.

Opening the Festival with an echoing brass fanfare, the Concert Band joined with the Lehigh Glee Club in the first section to present a program of widely diversified music. Performed for the first time were four waltzes written by Tom Waring for piano and Glee Club, with Rudy Schubert at the piano. The spotlight was turned on a new Lehigh song, "The Stocking Song," written by C. B. Campbell, Director of Admissions. This section also featured a group of Pops favorites by the Glee Club, Cliff Clefs, and the Cliff Clef Combo, closing with a medley from "Porgy and Bess".

A streamlined production of the Broadway musical "Brigadoon" was presented in the second section of the Festival. The chorus of "Brigadoon", composed of forty women residents of the Lehigh Valley together with the Lehigh Glee Club joined the Lehigh Orchestra to provide the musical background for the show.

Playing an important part in this year's Festival were a group of twenty-eight dancers. Girls from Cedar Crest College, Moravian College for Women, and Bethlehem joined with twelve Lehigh men as the dancing townsfolk of Brigadoon. This group also presented interpretive dances for many of the numbers in the first section.

Development of the set for the Festival required several months of planning before construction began in Grace Hall. The set was located on the northern stands of the main floor, and the Scottish highland setting of "Brigadoon" was the theme used for its design. A seventy-five foot stage was constructed in front of the bleachers with a 150 foot scrim screen across the front. Slides were projected on this screen to heighten the effect of being in a Scottish glen. In the first section slides were projected on a twenty-five foot plastic screen erected at the rear of the set.

The entire stage had to be fabricated by crews of student carpenters and electricians. More than 2500 man hours of work were required to accomplish the task, and construction crews remained in Bethlehem during the spring vacation to build the set.

Following the tradition started years ago by Richard Harding Davis, Mustard and Cheese has again this year attempted to provide the Lehigh family with the best possible in collegiate dramatic entertainment. The program during the past school year was a full one, especially when considering the limited facilities available for rehearsal, scene construction and actual production. It was also a highly varied program, ranging in content from an eighteenth century comedy of manners to an exciting, suspense-filled, historical drama.

After weeks of planning, casting and rehearsing, Richard Sheridan's "The Rivals" was presented in Packard Lab Auditorium on December 14th and 15th, along with "The Game of Chess", a student-directed one-act curtain raiser. Filling the feminine roles in the play were girls from the Drama Department of Cedar Crest College. Unfortunately, Old Man Winter also chose that weekend for his first large production of the year, with the result that automobile traffic was hopelessly bogged down by snow and slippery streets. Although there were only some thirty-odd people beyond the footlights, the plays went on—and were extremely well received. Saturday's audience was much larger and fully as appreciative, although not at all more responsive.

Even before the presentation of "The Rivals", the March production of the Club had been cast, and, with the exception of those men working on "The Rivals", it had gone into rehearsal. This early start was necessitated both by the large number of men in the cast and the fact that rehearsals would have to be broken up by Christmas vacation, exams, and between-semester vacation. The play was "Yellow Jack", an historical drama written by Sidney Howard and telling of the fight against yellow fever waged by American army doctors in Cuba. Performances took place the weekend of February 29th and March 1st in Broughal Junior High School.

Besides the usual Lehigh and Bethlehem audience, those who attended the production of "Yellow Jack" included some two hundred delegates to the Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Forensic Tournament. The Tournament, which was held at Lehigh, was attended by representatives of forty-two Pennsylvania schools.

In all, there were three performances of the play: one Friday night and two—matinee and evening—on Saturday. Each performance was well attended, and the production itself was termed successful by all those who saw it.

Interfaith Council

The purpose for which the Interfaith Council of Lehigh University was formed was to promote understanding and harmony among the faiths, and to unify the energies of campus religious organizations in support of such measures as shall increase the religious awareness of Lehigh students.

The Council is composed of three student members and an adviser from each of the three organizations which represent major religious faiths at Lehigh. The member organizations are the Christian Council, the Hillel Society, and the Newman Club.

This year the Council's major efforts were directed toward the second Annual Conference on Religion, which was scheduled on the University calendar for March 9-12. Through the medium of the Conference, the Council is trying, in a direct and well-organized manner, to achieve greater religious awareness on campus. This year we integrated the program for the Conference with a musical evening, entitled Music of the Faiths, which was presented by the combined Lehigh and Cedar Crest glee clubs under the direction of Professor Schempf. This singing was in addition to the regular programs of our member groups.

The Interfaith Council calls Chaplain Bean's office home, and it owes a deep debt of gratitude to the Chaplain for his untiring work for the Council.

One of the most active groups on the campus is the Christian Council of Lehigh University. It is composed of representatives of seven protestant religious organizations: Alpha Chi Epsilon, Canterbury Club, Chapel Choir, Lutheran Student Fellowship, Roger Williams Fellowship, Wesley Fellowship, and Westminster Fellowship, plus ten committee chairmen, each of whom directs an area of voluntary Christian activity: Cell Groups, Chapel, Conference on Religion, Discussions, Interfaith, Publicity, Social Activity, Social Service, Student Christian Movement and Visitations.

Last year the Christian Council was instrumental in organizing Lehigh's First Conference on Religion, another of which was held this year on March 9-12, with Dr. Samuel Shoemaker as one of the principal speakers. This tremendous undertaking consisted last year of a series of informative talks and discussions on "The Meaning of Life in an Age of Crisis." A very important and well received phase of that event was the discussion of religious problems in the various living groups, led by Dr. Albert Mollegen, Dr. John Nelson, The Rev. Oswald Elbert, The Rev. Harold Viehman, The Rev. Arthur Sherman, Jr., and The Rev. George Bean.

Another significant venture undertaken by the Council was the sponsorship of a displaced person, for whom a job was secured at the Delta Tau Delta Fraternity House on the University campus.

Through the endeavors of the Hillel Society of Lehigh University, the Jewish student is helped in the fields of religion, cultural activity, social life, and athletic activities. To fulfill these needs, Hillel offers religious services and instruction, cultural programs, socials, and a varied athletic program.

Following the pattern set last year, Hillel is ever increasing its activities. Still tops on the calendar of activities is the Conference on Religion. As an outgrowth of the Conference, Hillel has found a desire for speakers and bull sessions on Judaism, which has been incorporated in this year's program.

B'nai B'rith, local sponsor of the Hillel Society, each year sends a representative to the international Hillel Summer Institute for leadership training, where many local problems can be worked out on an international scale.

Since the number of Jewish students at Lehigh has risen in the past year, there are many young and competent hands helping out this year. With these assets, Hillel looks to many successful years to come.

Alpha Phi Omega

One of the largest national service fraternities, Alpha Phi Omega was founded at Lafayette College on December 16, 1925. The Alpha Psi chapter was chartered at Lehigh University in 1956. The fraternity consists of scout-trained men who want to perform service activities for their fellow students and faculty members, for youth and the community, for the nation, and for their fraternity brothers.

A few of the services that Alpha Phi Omega carries out on campus are aiding in Freshmen Orientation Week, the used book sale, ushering at Student Concerts-Lectures performances, parking cars at home football games, operating the polls and counting ballots at student elections, decorating the campus Christmas tree, labeling of trees, and the operation of the Lehigh blood bank.

One of the more recent tasks the Alpha Psi chapter has undertaken is the establishment and operation of a scout troop at the Allentown State Hospital. This troop is for boys who have been placed in the hospital because the state has no other place to put these children of broken families.

Scout Visitation Day has now become an annual event at Lehigh during football season. Seven hundred scouts from within a radius of one hundred miles are invited every year to attend a home football game and a guided tour of the campus.

Since its reorganization in 1948, the Brown Key Society has spent five busy years in its program of aiding visiting athletic teams, performing services for various University activities and serving as a general host and guide for many functions connected with Lehigh.

The Society, composed of thirty active members and ten pledges, carries out a vast program designed to further inter-collegiate relations. Members, coaches, and managers of visiting teams, whether they be of the football squad or the fencing team, soon become acquainted with the friendly Brown Key member who is always present to give any needed aid. Spectators and visitors to University athletic and social programs also find the wearers of the armband with the brown key a welcome guide as well as a helpful host.

By receiving money through the selling of balloons at football games, ushering at athletic contests, parking cars at the luncheons and dinners given by the University, and through the dues paid by its own members, the treasury of the Society has become financially firm. By further adding to the treasury the profits received by a dance given in conjunction with other Lehigh societies, Brown Key hopes to be able to promote student grants for deserving athletes in the near future. This plan of promoting student grants has been a long-range program of the Society.

On October 12, 1902, President Emeritus Charles F. Scott founded the Lehigh Student Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. The Lehigh Branch has the distinction of being the first student branch founded in a movement that has now grown to 127 branches in all parts of the country.

The purposes which the Lehigh Student Branch strives to achieve are to allow the undergraduate an opportunity to develop a more intimate association with the field which he has chosen for his career, and to foster a closer relationship among his fellow students and the faculty.

Throughout the year the branch brings to the Lehigh campus men of professional eminence in the electrical engineering field, to speak at the monthly meetings in order to acquaint the members with the new developments, problems and opportunities which they may encounter after their graduation. The talks are frequently supplemented by films and slides. This year the branch meetings centered around such speakers as Mr. A. H. Gipson of Western Electric Company, who spoke on the Problems of Plant Design; Mr. Henry Berring of the Weston Electrical Instrument Company, who spoke on Electrical Indicating Instruments; Mr. H. Allen White of Sylvania Electric Products Corporation, who spoke on Television Repair; and Mr. C. T. Pearce of Westinghouse Electric Corporation, who spoke on Finding Your Place in Engineering.

Field trips are made during the school year to give the members a better knowledge of practical engineering.

The Lehigh Student Branch is affiliated with the national organization of The American Institute of Electrical Engineers. A student membership in this organization entitles the student to receive the monthly publication, Electrical Engineering. It also makes him eligible to compete in A.I.E.E. technical paper competition for cash awards.

On the social side, the Lehigh Branch provides refreshments for the informal sessions which follow each meeting. These get-togethers give the student a chance to become acquainted with the faculty members and the speakers. Other events are the Spring Banquet and the Spring Picnic.

Last spring our faculty adviser, Professor W. Lyle Donaldson, was called back to active duty with the U. S. Navy. He has been succeeded this year by Mr. Howard T. MacFarland.

Since its first meeting over two and a half years ago, the student chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers has advanced and grown steadily. Originally formed to attract qualified speakers from industry for the industrial engineering students, it has since included the service element whereby committees strive to serve the Industrial Engineering Department, Lehigh University, and the national headquarters of A.I.E.E. Foremost in its plans is an investigation of the system of student registration for classes, a perennial headache. Other plans include a monthly Society newsletter and an attempt to drum up some commercial advertising in the Society Journal.

The Industrial Engineering Department has been bolstered this year with new instructors and the Society has included these men in its programs, believing that it will give all the students a chance to hear the instructor away from the sacred precincts of the classrooms.

The social aspects of the Society have also added greatly to its programs. A very successful banquet was held at Howard Johnson's restaurant in October, and certainly mention should be made of the annual spring picnic, held in conjunction with the ASME, with its bull-sessions, baseball games and crew races.

In 1948 several students interested in physics reorganized a society based on models of the many course societies functioning at Lehigh. The Lehigh Physics Society grew to the point that, in January of 1951, it was granted associate membership in the American Institute of Physics. The Lehigh A.I.P. is one of the first student organizations to be granted such a privilege.

This year the executive committee followed a new idea for selecting speakers and topics so as to combine entertainment and education. It was decided that physics is such a broad field of endeavor that almost any subject could be classified as "physics," and excellence of presentation was the only criterion by which speakers were chosen.

The enormous variety of jobs a physicist may be called upon to do was ably demonstrated by the seniors who recounted some of their summer-job experiences at the first meeting. Throughout the year, the topics ranged from the social problems at Los Alamos, to Oceanography at Wood's Hole, to Einstein's Theory of Relativity, as well as some of the hazards to be encountered in Lehigh laboratory courses.

This new system of selection was enthusiastically received, and the plan was an unquestionable success by the time the annual picnic at the reservoir marked the end of the year's activities.

First and oldest of all professional commerce fraternities, Alpha Kappa Psi was founded at New York University in 1904. Today, Alpha Kappa Psi has 86 chapters established at the leading schools of commerce and business administration in the United States and Canada.

The year 1924 saw Lehigh's Alpha Sigma chapter established as an outgrowth of the Business Administration Club. Instrumental in this early formation of the chapter were the late George B. Curtis, remembered by many of us as the former registrar of Lehigh, and Dr. Neil Carothers, now Dean Emeritus of the College of Business Administration. Dr. Elmer C. Bratt is the present Deputy Councilor of the chapter.

Alpha Kappa Psi aims "to further the individual welfare of its members; to foster scientific research in the fields of commerce, accounts and finance; to educate the public to demand higher ideals therein; and to promote and advance in institutions of college rank, courses leading to degrees in business administration."

The year's main event was the Northeast District Conference of the fraternity, held at Lehigh on October 19 and 20th. Delegates from nine collegiate and six alumni chapters enjoyed a program of meetings, banquets, tours, and numerous social events, making the first such conference held at Lehigh in over a decade an outstanding success.

The Civil Engineering Society has traditionally been one of the most active course societies in the University. It was organized in 1875 and is the oldest course society on the campus. The group was reorganized in 1922 when it became affiliated with the American Society of Civil Engineers as a student chapter.

The chapter serves the student in many ways. First, it gives him an opportunity to keep up to date on recent developments in the various fields of civil engineering. Second, it provides an opportunity for him to become familiar with engineering vocabulary and many of the everyday problems of an engineer. Finally, it enables the students from all classes to become acquainted with their instructors and fellow students.

The meetings of the chapter are held monthly. At each meeting this year, an outstanding engineer gave an illustrated lecture on some engineering project. The lectures throughout the year were concerned with various branches of civil engineering, including construction, design, sanitation, equipment, highways, and sales. Also, at each meeting, a student gave a short talk about his summer employment. Five inspection trips were made to local projects under construction during the year. Social functions consisted of a Christmas Banquet and a spring picnic.

The Lehigh Student Branch of the ASME was founded in 1911 with the objectives in mind of broadening the student's acquaintance with the practical side of mechanical engineering, as well as acquainting the student with graduate engineers engaged in active practice.

Toward these ends, the Student Branch holds monthly meetings at which prominent men from industry speak on subjects of general engineering interest. Each member receives the monthly magazine, Mechanical Engineering, which is a publication of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

In line with our more social vein, the outstanding event of the fall semester is the annual Lehigh-Lafayette Smoker, sponsored by the Anthracite-Lehigh Valley section of the ASME. It is an informal gathering of the students from Lehigh and Lafayette with the practicing engineers of this locality. The spring semester this year was highlighted by a meeting held in conjunction with the American Society for Stress Analysis, as well as the annual picnic held at a local park.

The Lehigh Student Branch sends delegates to the annual ASME Convention and to the annual Regional Student Conference.

Founded in 1926, the Astronomical Society is named after the eminent mathematician and astronomer, Ernest W. Brown. Its purpose is to further interest in astronomy on the campus and in the community.

After several years of inactivity the Society was re-organized in March 1950 by Charles E. Scovil '52. The new Society revised its inherited constitution and went to work cleaning up Sayre Observatory. Through the Society's efforts the Buildings and Grounds Department of the University rewired, repainted and renovated the building.

Due to a burglary of the Observatory in 1948, and subsequent removal for safe storage of the Objective lens of the 6-inch telescope, the Society was without instruments. An old 4½-inch zenith telescope was renovated, and members brought their home-made instruments for the use of the Society. In December 1950 the Objective of the 6-inch telescope was returned from storage and with eyepieces supplied by the members, the telescope was returned to limited service. Plans are underway to provide in the near future new eyepieces, a new mounting for the telescope, and a new observatory dome. With these the Society hopes to resume its program of furthering campus and community interest in astronomy.

During the spring of 1948 the Lehigh Business Society was established by nine students in the College of Business Administration. These students felt a need for a local organization devoted to supplementing the business education taught in the classroom.

The group's principal activities, in accord with this goal, are largely twofold: inviting leaders from business and industry to the campus, and visiting business concerns in the vicinity of Lehigh which are of interest to the organization.

During the past year the society heard speakers on various subjects, such as the selection of a location for a manufacturing plant, advertising in the steel industry, opportunities in the small construction industry and merchandising management. These informative talks, followed by question and answer periods, brought into clearer perspective the business problems studied by the members.

This year's activities included speakers on topics such as labor relations, personal investment problems, and operation of a department store, in addition to field trips to the New York Stock Exchange, a stock brokerage office and a steel corporation.

Active interest on the part of the members has made the organization a success, and with continued interest, a broader and more educational program can be developed.

Chemical Societies

The program for 1951-52 included joint meetings of all three societies on October 18, February 21 and April 17. The first meeting in this series was a discussion of Lehigh's Institute of Research.

Separate meetings of the two professional societies were held on November 15 and March 20. Speakers were obtained to acquaint students with the industrial aspects of their careers.

The annual Christmas banquet for all members was held on December 15. The festivities included on the program allowed the seniors to let off excess steam in parodies of instructors under whom they have labored during their stay at Lehigh.

A final fling was held on May 15 in the form of a picnic, where chemistry and chemical engineering were forgotten. Instead, refreshments and general enjoyment were the order of the day.

STUDENT CHAPTER AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF CHEMICAL ENGINEERS

Lehigh's chapter of the A.I.Ch.E. was established December 4, 1949, to provide opportunities for the professional development of the students in Chemical Engineering. Two separate meetings and five joint meetings with the other societies are held per year. This year's officers are:

Robert W. Hall Pre-Medical Society

To further interest in pre-medical and medical education and in the field of biology is the aim of the Robert W. Hall Pre-Medical Society. The Society was established for the benefit of pre-medical students, biology majors, and others interested in these fields.

Toward the attainment of this aim, a great variety of speakers is secured—from local hospitals, from medical school faculties, and from the ranks of practicing physicians. Movies are shown from time to time on subjects of interest to the group. Current information on medical school admissions and catalogues from many institutions are made available to members.

In addition to these activities, the Society takes field trips to local hospitals and mental institutions. Joint meetings are often held with Alpha Epsilon Delta. Moreover, the R. W. Hall Society joins with several other similar organizations in the Lehigh Valley for an annual pre-medical banquet.

Towards the purpose of advancing the art and science of radio communication, and promoting the professional welfare of engineers engaged therein, the Institute of Radio Engineers was organized in 1912. The Institute's activities have grown with the expansion of the art to embrace all branches of electrical communications and the related fields.

The Institute, which is a national organization, distributes authoritative technical information through its publications and meetings. Meetings held periodically in different cities afford an opportunity for workers in the various fields to discuss their problems in conferences devoted to subjects of common interest. Through representative groups the Institute develops standards which provide terminology with precise meaning, and test procedures which make directly comparable the results of different workers.

Monthly publication of the Proceedings of the I.R.E. is the Institute's most important single activity. Established in 1913, the Proceedings has been published uninterruptedly, and its files portray a history of the basic developments in radio engineering.

The Lehigh Student Branch is a relatively new organization on campus, formed in 1948. Its purpose is to acquaint members with developments in the electronics field through lectures and field trips. The society is also valuable in providing the student with an opportunity to become associated with the Institute while he is still preparing for his professional career.

The Metallurgy Society is an organization consisting entirely of students majoring in the field of metallurgical engineering. The monthly meetings of the Society serve as a source of technical and non-technical information, besides being a place where students interested in a common subject may talk over the latest developments in the metallurgical field.

This year the Society invited technical men from in and around the Lehigh Valley to discuss some of the many metallurgical operations being carried out in this area. The purpose of these talks was to supplement the student's textbook education and at the same time be an aid in helping him to decide his field of endeavor after graduation. In addition to technical speakers, the Society also invited members of the arts and business faculties at Lehigh to speak on topics of current interest.

Several other social functions were held in addition to the regular meetings. In December the Society held a banquet, while in May everyone turned out for the annual picnic.

In the fall of 1948 the Political Science Assembly was officially established on the Lehigh campus in order to "foster interest in, as well as to inform members and non-members on, current political problems." Another major purpose of P.S.A. is to sponsor Lehigh's participation in the activities of the Intercollegiate Conference on Government.

The I.C.G. is a state-wide organization of Pennsylvania college students who conduct some type of model political assembly each year. The annual conference this year took the form of a model political party convention, adopting a "model" platform and choosing a "model" candidate from among the national party leaders.

The sessions are held in the Capitol buildings in Harrisburg during a three or four day period each spring. Over 500 students representing some 50 Pennsylvania colleges usually attend. Choosing their own officers and conducting their business and legislative affairs as they see fit, the delegates participate in a real project of "applied political science."

In previous years the annual assembly took the form of model national Congresses, state legislatures, or constitutional conventions. Since 1948 Lehigh has taken a leading part in the activities of I.C.G. The system of majority, preferential voting used on the Lehigh campus was adopted in 1949 to choose the convention officers of I.C.G.

Alpha Lambda Omega

Alpha Lambda Omega is a social fraternity for the students of Allentown and vicinity. In 1941, Henry Seebald, a Lehigh student, who later became a member of Lehigh's mathematics department, first organized a club known as the A.L.O., Allentown Lehigh Organization. The purpose of the club, as of the present fraternity, was to permit students from Allentown and the surrounding towns to become acquainted and to participate in college life that they might otherwise miss.

In 1942 the idea of establishing a local fraternity was first conceived, and a constitution was approved by the Dean of Students. With this approval, Alpha Lambda Omega became the first fraternity of its kind at Lehigh.

Of the many students in the Allentown area, more than half have signed up for membership. Freshmen as well as upperclassmen are now eligible, and in addition to Allentown, the localities of Northampton, Catasauqua, Fullerton, and other towns in the vicinity currently have members in the fraternity.

During the school year many social activities highlight the fraternity calendar. The 1951 fall semester got off to a good start with the Freshman Smoker on October 12. A very successful initiation banquet was held at Shankweiler's Hotel on October 26. The fraternity held its own houseparty revel at Nood's Barn on the Saturday night of fall houseparty.

With the express purpose of "uniting socially and intellectually upon grounds of mutual understanding and appreciation, the students and faculty members of all nationalities at Lehigh," the Cosmopolitan Club was formed in 1938 by a small group of students. In 1939 a house was acquired for its members; however, the war ended prematurely this acme of international living.

Since the war, the Club has been returning to its former self. Its motley group of members made possible unique activities. In a program entitled "Many Faces Has the Globe," individual members participated in radio talks over WGPA and WLRN. Local city groups welcomed "Cosmos" speakers, some of whom became so popular that they were "booked" for weeks. Series of native dinners, cooked by student connoisseurs, were given at the YWCA and at the homes of faculty members. However, Lamber-ton Hall dinner meetings were the mainstay of our Club's popularity, since the "lamb chops" blended well with our informal discussions of timely topics, presented by faculty guest speakers. The Club's guests included members of the Lehigh family and the fair co-eds from Moravian and Cedar Crest Colleges.

Countries represented in the Club this year are: Burma, Canada, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Cuba, Estonia, France, Germany, India, Indonesia, Italy, Jordan, Latvia, Lebanon, Malaya, Mexico, Norway, Philippines, Switzerland, Syria and Turkey. Hawaii was also represented.

A new organization this year, the Outing Club was born in May of 1951 when the Ski and the Sportsmen's Clubs merged in order to give Lehigh men more opportunities to engage in informal outdoor sports. Thus far the activities of the Club have centered around fishing, hunting, camping, trap shooting, and skiing, but there is no limit in regard to what can be done in the future.

During the past fall the trapshooters competed regularly, while two camping trips were taken by other members on the Delaware River. Small groups of pheasant and rabbit hunters were active in November, while several deer-hunting groups tried their luck in the Pocono Mountains. In addition to horseback riding and ice-skating, skiing was the main winter sport. Members of the Ski Team, eligible for minor varsity letters, competed in intercollegiate ski meets and conducted an invitational meet on February 24 in the Poconos.

The interest of the students in this young club has been intense; over seventy members participated in eight activities during the past year. The only qualification for membership, which is open to students and faculty members, is interest in the functions of the Outing Club.

During the last Spring and Fall seasons the Sailing Club made a name for itself not only on the campus but among all the schools in the East. Its members not only have the opportunity to travel to regattas at other schools, but they also have three Penguin Class catboats in Allentown for their exclusive use.

The Club's previous intercollegiate success was acknowledged in the Spring of 1951 when it was promoted from associate to regular membership in the Middle Atlantic Inter-collegiate Sailing Association at its meeting in New York. The Lehigh skippers had proven themselves worthy of this honor by winning four out of their seven previous meets.

The team's mastery in this area is borne out by the fact that Lehigh has taken four straight Greater Philadelphia Area Championships, each time downing such prominent schools as Princeton and Pennsylvania. At their last intersectional meet the team journeyed to Washington to come out on top over North Carolina, Maryland, Georgetown, George Washington, and others.

The Sailing Club has great plans for the future, with their hope of holding intercollegiate regattas at home almost realized.

Varsity "L" Club

In December, 1940, the captains of all the athletic teams at Lehigh founded the Varsity "L" Club for the purpose of stimulating undergraduate interest in athletics and serving as a continuing body of inquiry into undergraduate sports interests and needs. The sole requirement for membership in the club is the possession of a varsity letter in one of the varsity sports. In 1945 the club was inactivated due to the war, and remained so until September 1946. Since that time the organization has been in continuous operation with a membership of about one hundred.

Indirectly, the club is able to exert a great deal of influence on athletic policy and action through the close association of its members with the athletic department. More directly, however, the club, through its representation on the University's Athletic Committee, has been instrumental in having lacrosse and other sports raised to a varsity level. It was also through the efforts of the club that a new code of regulations was instituted for varsity letter requirements.

Recently the Varsity "L" Club has had two objectives before it: to obtain and furnish a room in the gym for athletes to meet and get to know one another better, and to award a blanket to men who have earned two or more letters in one sport.

In February 1946 the Dames Club was organized with the aid of the faculty wives. Membership is open to wives of Lehigh graduate and undergraduate students; the stated purpose of the Club is to help the wives become better acquainted and to provide social activities for the group.

This year the Club is small because the number of married students has decreased, but it is quite active and meets twice a month. We opened the fall semester with the annual Tea, at which time we greeted former and prospective members, and met many faculty wives. A book was presented to Mrs. John Leith for her valuable assistance as adviser during the year 1950-51. Among the most interesting events of the first half of the year were a Fashion Show presented by Hess Brothers; an informal talk on pre-natal care by Miss Davies, Dr. Pearson's nurse; a cooking demonstration by the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company; a cosmetic demonstration, also given by Hess Brothers; and a trip through St. Luke's Hospital. We especially enjoyed our Christmas party at the home of Mrs. William A. Aiken. At that time we packed two baskets of staples for a needy family, sang Christmas carols, and enjoyed refreshments.

During the spring semester the club's program included a talk by Dr. Francis Trembley of the University faculty; a floral demonstration; a visit from Marjory Fink's dancing school pupils; and some lively discussions at our "purely social" meetings.

We were fortunate in having as our adviser this year Mrs. Lawrence Whitcomb whose sympathetic guidance and spontaneous humor we shall not forget. We appreciate the time and effort she gave us.

LITTLE THREE CHAMPIONS

Following on the heels of Lehigh's first undefeated football season, the Engineers' 1951 grid campaign might seem to be an anti-climax. However, Coach Bill Leckonby survived the loss of several stars and fielded a team that played fine football, and although they didn't reach the heights of the previous season, the team piled up a respectable 7-2 record.

After weathering a rocky time in their opening games, the Lehigh eleven bounced back and finished strong. They dropped two of their first three games but won their last six straight, including convincing victories over Lafayette and Rutgers. Also, they retained the little brass cannon, symbolic of Middle Three supremacy, with the result that the cannon will remain on South Mountain until 1954 when Middle Three competition is resumed.

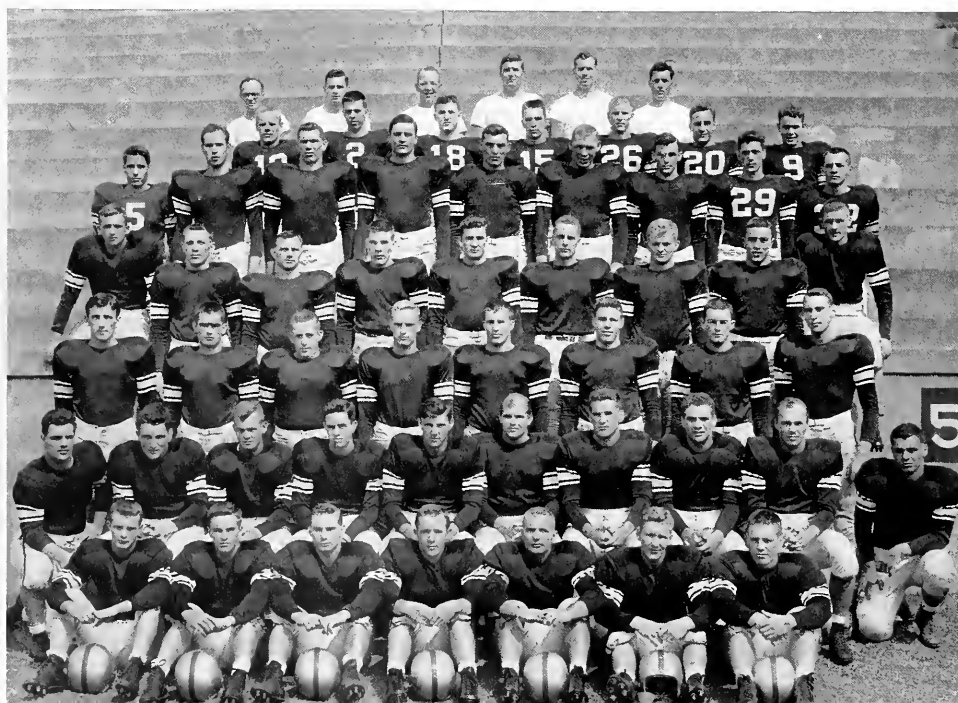

Highlights of the season included the big upset over Rutgers, the last-minute victory over N.Y.U., the mud battle with Muhlenberg, and the second straight rout of traditional rival Lafayette. Two games were won by Walt Trillhaase's field goals—rarely seen in college ranks—to boost the number of games won by the tackle's accurate right toe to five in two years.

One record was almost set during the season. Herb Weiss, Lehigh's stellar quarterback and passer, came close to setting a new Lehigh record for yards gained through the air, but missed the mark set by Joe Scannella in 1949 by 43 yards. He did gain 750 yards passing and another 200 yards rushing to lead the team in total offense.

Once again Coach Bill Leckonby relied on the split-T formation from which he could get a solid running attack. Lehigh didn't gain much yardage rushing through the early part of the season, though, but the ground attack improved until it was reeling off 200-300 yards per game. Sophomore Joe Kryla, a small but speedy halfback, was the leading runner with 742 yards, while Bob Borofski and George O'Brien also rolled up considerable yardage.

So although it lacked the glory of the previous season, the 1951 football campaign didn't lack distinction.

Westfall intercepts

A blocked punt got Lehigh's football season off on the wrong foot, as the Delaware gridders converted this break into their only touchdown. The Blue Hens then held on to this advantage despite several Lehigh threats for a 7-0 upset victory at Wilmington Ball Park.

Lehigh's downfall came early in the first quarter when Herb Weiss dropped back to his own nine yard line to punt. However, before Weiss could get the ball away, Al Brodbag charged in from his defensive tackle slot, blocked Weiss' belated punt, and recovered the ball on the Lehigh 4. Joe Scarcia then sliced off left tackle for the deciding score, and Bill Craver converted.

That was Delaware's last bid for a touchdown as they never again came within striking distance of the Lehigh goal. Delaware runners clicked off 162 yards in line style, but the Blue Hens could not keep moving in Lehigh territory as the Engineer defense consistently held fast.

Lehigh's ground attack, featuring the running of Joe Kryla, Bob Borofski, and Joe Moyer, fared as well as Delaware's, but running against a nine-man line, they could not pile up a sustained drive. Therefore, quarterback Weiss usually had to take to the air, but without too much success.

It was two of his passes, however, that almost tied the game. In the first quarter, Lehigh drove to the Delaware 15 where Weiss fired a fourth-down pass to Jack Bergman in the end zone. Jim Carbonetti knocked the ball out of Bergman's hands at the last second to prevent the score. Later, another fourth-down pass was completed to freshman Ted Scheussler on the Delaware 7, but Scheussler grabbed the ball inches out of bounds and Delaware took over.

Eight fumbles, six being recovered by Lehigh, helped the Engineers to a victorious debut, as a large crowd in Taylor Stadium saw Lehigh defeat a well-coordinated Williams eleven, 20-6, with Joe Moyer scoring twice.

However, Lehigh did not win as easily as the score might indicate. The Purple, paced by the outstanding performance of quarterback Paul Cramer, outpassed and outran the Engineers by 151 yards, but fumbles and two vital pass interceptions broke up most of Williams' long drives.

Furthermore, two fumbles within the Williams 51 yard line set up Lehigh scores. Dave Mesick recovered a Cramer fumble on the Purple 51 late in the first period, and Lehigh scored in five plays, Moyer carrying the ball the last five yards. Two minutes later Lehigh tallied again, after Jim Hancock recovered Cramer's fumble on the Williams seven, and Moyer cracked through center for the touchdown.

Herb Weiss' passing gave Lehigh their last six points in the fourth quarter as the Engineers drove 72 yards in eight plays. Three long passes set up the score, and Weiss carried the ball over from the one on a quarterback sneak.

Aside from these two fumbles, Cramer stood out as a one-man team for Williams. He put on one of the best passing exhibitions seen in Taylor Stadium for many years as he completed 18 of 54 tosses for 195 yards, hitting his ends and backs consistently. His two pass interceptions were costly, though, as Chuck Adams intercepted both within the Williams 50 and ran them back for a total of 105 yards. Cramer also showed plenty of running prowess, carrying the ball 20 times for 68 yards—a rare feat for a T-formation quarterback.

Lehigh suffered their worst humiliation of the year to a strong Bucknell eleven, which went on to an undefeated season and was one of the top teams in the East. The Bisons, featuring a high-powered ground attack, rolled over the Engineers, 47-7, at Taylor Stadium to hand Lehigh their worst defeat in two years.

Bucknell was unstoppable on the ground. With Brad Myers and Burt Talmage, a pair of speedy halfbacks, leading the way with 265 yards and four touchdowns between them, Bison runners picked up 363 yards at an average of over five yards per try. These two and fullback Bob Albert kept hitting the Lehigh line all afternoon, driving their way for several yards whenever a hole wasn't opened up.

Lehigh, meanwhile, ran into a stone wall on the ground, gaining only 36 yards against a defensive array that packed over 200 pounds per man. It was only when they took to the air that the Engineers could move, and only then in their third period, 68-yard touchdown drive, Jim Powers, passing from the spread formation, passed to Joe Moyer in the end zone for the score.

Bucknell started their touchdown parade on the first play of the second quarter when Myers tallied on a 55 yard run, Talmage then scored the next three on an eight-yard end run and 20 and 48 yard runs through the center of the line.

The Bisons then pushed over their last three scores in the final 15 minutes with most of the second team playing. When they were all finished, it added up to the worst drubbing for Lehigh since Brown's 49-0 win in 1949.

Field goals are usually confined to the pro football ranks; however, Walt Trillhaase, Lehigh's kicking specialist, used the pro's method to beat Gettysburg. Trillhaase's accurate right foot booted a 28 yard field goal in the third quarter to give Lehigh a 9-7 victory on the loser's gridiron.

Lehigh, having had a touchdown called back by an offside penalty a minute earlier, was faced with a fourth down, six yards to go situation on the Gettysburg 10 yard line when Coach Bill Leckonby called for the field goal. Trillhaase dropped back to the 18 and kicked the ball high between the uprights for the deciding three points.

Actually, the game was not as close as the score might indicate. Lehigh, led by Herb Weiss' line passing, outgained Gettysburg by 87 yards and completely outclassed their opponents in the second half. However, penalties cost the Engineers 205 yards (the penalties themselves and the yards lost when the play was nullified), with Lehigh losing one touchdown and possibly a couple more.

Lehigh started off the game as if they were going to roll up a big score. On the Engineers' first play from scrimmage, Weiss heaved a long pass from the Lehigh 38 which Jack Bergman grabbed on the Gettysburg 35 and raced into the end zone unmolested.

After that, though, it was a battle of halves—Gettysburg dominating the first half and Lehigh coming back to take over in the second 30 minutes. Lehigh made their longest march of the day in the third quarter when they drove 85 yards to the Gettysburg 5. Weiss then completed a touchdown pass to George O'Brien, only to have it called back by a penalty. That set the stage for Trillhaase's game-winning field goal.

Weiss to Bergman and a T.D.

The big upset of the year came when an inspired Engineer team dumped a heavily-favored Rutgers aggregation, 21-6, outplaying the Scarlet in almost every department and stunning a Rutgers alumni-day crowd of about 14,000 at New Brunswick.

Paced by Herb Weiss' fine passing, a sharp running attack, and some air-tight defensive play—especially the pass defense which intercepted five aerials, Lehigh held the upper hand from the start. The Scarlet spent most of the game back in their own territory and rarely lived up to their reputation of being a vaunted powerhouse. Once Lehigh held a two-touchdown lead, Rutgers was a beaten team.

Weiss was the biggest thorn in Rutgers' side all afternoon. The Lehigh quarterback had a hand in all scoring as he threw two touchdown passes to Jack Bergman and carried the other over himself on a quarterback sneak.

Weiss' accurate passing was also one of the biggest factors in Lehigh's attack. Completing nine of 14 tosses for 140 yards, Weiss picked out his receivers and hit them every time. Lehigh's running attack was also a big surprise when they piled up 166 yards against a strong line.

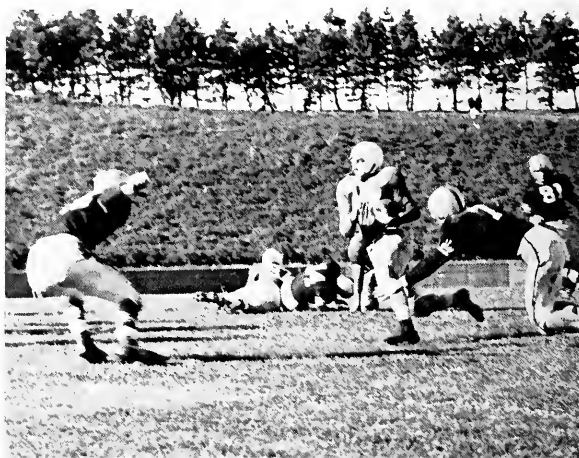

Lehigh took a 7-0 lead the first time they had the ball. After Weiss faked a lateral and cut through tackle for 55 yards, the Lehigh quarterback heaved a 55 yard pass to Bergman in the end zone for the score.

Three long passes by Weiss paced Lehigh's second touchdown drive to the one yard line from which Weiss plunged over. Lehigh then added an insurance tally with 17 seconds gone in the final quarter when Weiss, passing from the spread formation, completed a three-yard pass to Bergman just inside the end zone.

Tom Gunn decided one of the most exciting games in recent football history when he grabbed a 41-yard touchdown pass with only 70 seconds left in the game and sent a hard-fighting N.Y.U. eleven down to defeat, 25-20. Gunn's catch of Herb Weiss' long toss ended a desperate, last-minute 99 yards drive and climaxed a see-saw battle of two unstoppable ground attacks before a large houseparty crowd at Taylor Stadium.

The big sophomore end, however, almost missed his chance to give Lehigh the exciting victory. Gunn was closely guarded by Dan Solazzo as he raced toward the end zone, and the N.Y.U. defender leaped in vain to knock down Weiss' pass, the ball just being out of his reach. Gunn, whose view was probably blocked by Solazzo, then let the ball bounce off his chest and into the air, but he saved the day by grabbing the ball as it came down for the game-winning score.

That was the climax to the game during which the lead constantly changed hands. Both offenses marched the length of the field at will, and when one team took the lead, the other came right back to score and go back out in front.

Lehigh's ground attack ran right through N.Y.U.'s defense as they rolled up 325 yards—almost double their previous high for rushing in one game. In fact, Joe Kryla, who picked up 192 yards including a 53 yard touchdown run, gained 85 yards more than Lehigh's rushing average for the first five games. Kryla, Bob Borofski, and George O'Brien each scored touchdowns and paced Lehigh offensively until Gunn came up with the clincher.

Mud and a stiff wind, two great football "equalizers", put the Lehigh and Muhlenberg football teams in the same stalled boat at mucky, windswept Allentown High School stadium. All, that is, except Walt Trillhaase, who unaffected by the goo and using the wind to his advantage, toed a 24-yard field goal to edge the Mules, 3-2, before a sparse gathering.

With the wind at his back, the Engineer tackle booted the muddy ball at a slight angle from a mushy spot on the 14 yard line. The three-pointer came in the third quarter after a 40-yard drive stalled on the Berg seven when three ground plays failed to net a first down.

Muhlenberg's only score was a gift from the Lehigh strategy board. With a 3-0 lead early in the fourth quarter, Herb Weiss faced a fourth down situation on the Lehigh 16. Rather than have to punt into the wind or have the ball blocked, Weiss back-pedaled the distance into the end zone for an automatic safety. The wrong-way run paid off for the Engineers, for after the kick-off, the Mules never got closer than the Lehigh 44 for the rest of the game.

With both teams getting nowhere in the mud, a punting duel between left-footed Weiss of Lehigh and freshman Jim Colagreco of Muhlenberg featured most of the game. Weiss punted 15 times, twice as often as in any previous game, for an average of 28.7 yards, while Colagreco booted 14 times for a 32.1 yard average. Neither team got close to the goal line until Trillhaase broke the ice in the third quarter, and that was enough for the victory.

Lehigh rolled up their biggest score of the year over one of the best teams in the state—Carnegie Tech. For the second year in succession, a supposedly-tough Skiho eleven fell apart before Lehigh's stronger gridders—this year by a 34-7 score as the Engineers capitalized on long runs to notch their sixth win of the season at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh.

Tech showed that they had a good team offensively, but their defense was helpless in trying to stop Lehigh runners, especially in the second half. Led by Joe Kryla who gained 150 yards rushing, Lehigh's ground attack rolled up 590 yards, as the Engineer line ripped big holes in Tech's defenses, and Kryla, George O'Brien, and Bob Borofski did the rest.

However, it was Lehigh's long runs that broke the Tartans' back. Kryla raced 80 yards for Lehigh's first touchdown, and Herb Weiss, keeping the ball himself, circled his ends for 14 and 37 yard touchdown runs. Martin Maurer scored the final Engineer six-pointer when he raced through the center of the line for 65 yards. O'Brien also set up some of the second-half TD's when he broke away for several long gains.

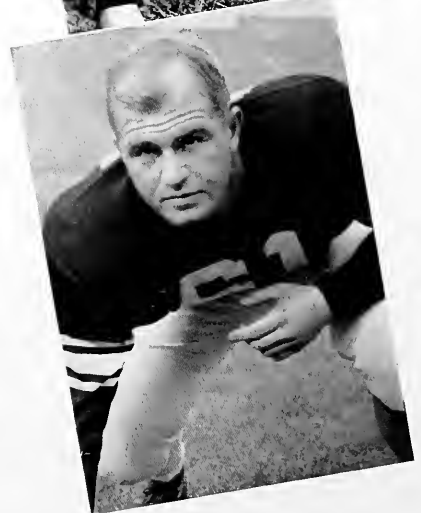

So effective was Lehigh's ground attack that Weiss rarely had to take to the air. One of the four passes that he completed, though, was good for a touchdown as Tom Gunn made a fine catch of a 19-yard pass in the third quarter.

One sad note in the game was that Bob Morgan, ace defense man, broke his arm in the first quarter, putting him out of action for the season.

There could be no better way to close out any football season than to lick traditional rival Lafayette. So it was a fitting closing to a successful season when the Engineers romped over the Leopards for the second straight year 32-0, before about 15,000 at Liberty High School stadium.

It was a routine ball game except for a few flareups from unsportsmanlike play. Lehigh was favored to win and most thought they could win by a big score; so no one was surprised when they did just that. In fact, they took over from where they left off in last year's 38-0 rout, scored two quick touchdowns, and coasted the rest of the way to a relatively easy victory.

However, one feature of the game failed to materialize. Herb Weiss' bid for the individual Lehigh passing record fell short by 43 yards. The fine quarterback had an "off" day as he completed only one of 10 passes for 14 yards and had trouble hitting his receivers, but the cold weather and strong wind didn't help his passing any.

Joe Kryla and Joe Moyer provided the excitement in the game with long runs. Kryla raced 75 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter, while Moyer got off two long punt returns—one good for 63 yards and a touchdown. Weiss also scored on a 15 yard run, while Bob Borofski and Jim Powers tallied the other two touchdowns on line bucks.

Line plunge

On the ground Lehigh rolled up 216 yards in a manner familiar to fans who had been watching the Engineers all year. Once again it was Kryla who was the big ground-gainer as the fleet halfback picked up 125 yards—one less than Lafayette's rushing total. Meanwhile, Lafayette had trouble moving at all, except in the third quarter when they drove 51 yards only to lose the ball on a fumble. Four such costly fumbles hurt Lafayette offensively.

Lehigh wasted no time in converting a fumble in the first quarter into a touchdown—Borolski carrying the ball over from the one. Moyer then came up with his fine runback of Colson's punt later in the quarter when he took the ball on the Lehigh 37, faked a hand-off to Ron Westfall, and then streaked up the sidelines for the score, shaking off tacklers as he went.

Weiss swept wide around his left end for 15 yards and a touchdown in the second quarter to boost the score to 19-0. Powers then added six more points to the Engineer total when he plunged over from the four on a quarterback sneak in the third quarter, and Kryla followed by racing 75 yards for Lehigh's last touchdown after he cut off right tackle and outran all tacklers for the score.

Under the watchful eye of Coach Bill Christian, Dave Henderson led the cross country team through a most successful season by placing first in four of the six meets. Dave will be co-captain of the 1952 squad with Bill Colclough.

The team benefited by the "freshman rule" in moving Dick Vogel to the varsity; however, in general, the rule did more harm than good in expecting freshmen to make the jump from a two or two and a half mile course to a five mile course in one month. Don Michie was the only other freshman to endure the season.

The most unusual event of the season occurred at Swarthmore when Bob Vekony finished twice. The race ended on a quarter mile track and after coming in fifth Bob continued around the track and outsprinted a Swarthmore harrier to the finish line to take twelfth spot as well.

The squad loses Captain Bruce Reinhart and Dick Beiler through graduation. Reinhart was unable to participate most of the season due to an injury sustained in the Haverford meet. Co-managers Ken Kircher and Bill Kuhlke also leave the squad after being managers for three years.

Since Bill Christian took over as mentor, the team has compiled a record of twelve wins against one loss, the sole defeat being administered this year by a strong Rutgers squad. At the annual banquet, Coach Christian was presented with a Persian lamb-lined athletic supporter as a "token of appreciation" by the team.

1951's soccer team posted the greatest record in the history of Lehigh soccer. Not only did they complete the season with a won and loss record of 10 and 5, but they brought the school its first Middle Atlantic Soccer Championship.

The first game was anything but an indication of things to come as the Engineers were upset by Gettysburg 2-1. Joe Ferguson had the unusual experience of scoring a goal for the Bullet's on a bad kick. The Engineers quickly snapped out of their losing ways in the next two contests to defeat Muhlenberg and Lafayette. Delaware proved to be a tough match for they carried the game into an over-time before Calvino scored the winning goal to eke out a 2-1 win.

Lehigh played one of the finest games of the season against Haverford, defending Middle Atlantic Champions. The Engineers combined a fine passing game with a stellar defense to defeat Haverford 5-1. Goalie George Crosley was particularly outstanding in the nets. In their next engagement Coach Billy Sheridan's booters led Swarthmore for over three quarters and seemed to have victory tucked away until Jim Kingham and Jose Calvino were injured. The reshuffled team was unable to withstand the Garnet and lost 5-5. At Navy, Lehigh had just one of those days when nothing goes right. The Engineers closed out the season with three straight wins over Franklin and Marshall, Ursinus, and Rutgers. The scoring combination of Captain Gigon to Jose Calvino was too much for these opponents.

At the close of the regular season, a playoff was needed to decide who would represent the Northern Division in the Middle Atlantic playoffs. Lehigh defeated Rutgers 1-0 in the first game on Calvino's beautiful head shot of Dick Gigon's long cross. The Engineers then polished off Swarthmore 3-0 with Dick Gigon accounting for the scores. Full-backs Wayne Staats and George Gigon played a stellar game. In the Middle Atlantic finals Lehigh overpowered Franklin and Marshall 4-1 for the championship.

across offense which coupled with an airtight defense was a tough combination to beat. Captain Dick Gigon was named All-American. He is undoubtedly one of Lehigh's all-time soccer greats. Jose Calvino, leading scorer, set a new collegiate record of head shots with ten. Jim and Jack Kingham, Wally Oswald, Gail Williams, Joe Ferguson, and Ernie Goelz gave Lehigh the punch and drive necessary for a successful team. Wayne Staats and George Gigon were two exceptionally fine fulbacks, who with glue-fingered George Crosley, were a formidable defensive unit.

Injuries, scholastic probation, and a poorly balanced squad seemed to plague the 1951-52 wrestling team which, after a promising start, ended the season with a five-five record. However, there were several bright spots in the season.

Captain George Feuerbach won his third straight EIWA title and was named the tourney's most outstanding wrestler, while a newcomer and an old standby—Ken Faust and Ed Mahoney—turned in some outstanding performances. Faust took a second in the 150 lb. division of the EIWA; Lehigh finished fourth in the team scores with fifteen points.

In post season competition, Feuerbach was eliminated in the quarter finals of the NCAA wrestling championships at Fort Collins, Colorado; he also lost in the initial round of the National AAU's at Cornell to Jack Hansen. And Feuerbach, Faust, and Ed Mahoney advanced to the Olympic final tryouts at Ames, Iowa.

With Coach Tony Packer's long range rebuilding plan in its second season, Lehigh's basketball team had its best campaign in many a year during 1951-'52. The Engineers wound up the season with a seven and twelve record and also accumulated more points in one season than any other Brown and White quintet had previously scored.

Although many had counted on a more successful year for the frosh laden Packermen, the team was young and many in basketball circles are keeping their eye on them for the future.

On December 5th the Brown and White team invaded Swarthmore's field house for the season opener. The Garnets upset the taller Engineers in a wild and woolly fracas which saw 64 fouls called. The Packers returned to play host to Delaware and although they dropped the game 80-62 the partisan fans were treated to a real display of high scoring basketball.

One of the highlights of Lehigh's season came early in the campaign when the South Mountaineers pulled out a 75-70 overtime victory over Muhlenberg on the Mules' court. It was the first time Lehigh had been able to take the measure of the Mules since 1939 and broke a 20 game victory skein rung up against the Engineers by Muhlenberg. This heartening display was soon overshadowed by a 88-59 trouncing at the hands of Princeton and once again hopes for a winning season fell to new lows.

The next two games saw Lehigh hot as a firecracker against Haverford cooking them 70-44, and then ice cold against Bucknell's Bisons losing by a tune of 87-67.

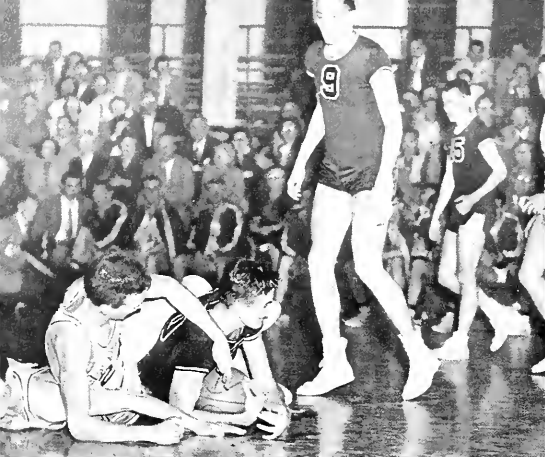

The Packermen returned to the cage wars after the Christmas recess only to be stopped in their tracks by Drexel 57-56. The game was almost Lehigh's as they had held a point advantage with 55 seconds to go. Equally disillusioning was a 78-75 set back by F. & M. which saw freshman Eddie Cahn score 52 points to lead a fourth period rally which just fell short.

Although Cahn once again went wild with 25 points, it wasn't enough to keep Lehigh from being outscrapped by Rutgers 88-76. The Engineers finally got back on the winning road as they swamped Stevens Tech. For three periods Lehigh battled traditional rival Lafayette on even terms and had several opportunities to pull away and break the Leopards' 21 game jinx. However, the Marquis bounced back in the final minutes to eke out a triumph.

Scoring only one point in the third stanza while Army canned 20, Lehigh once again was denied victory, as the Cadets pulled out a poorly played contest 62-51. Continuing to be an on-and-off team Lehigh was on against Ursinus and took them over 62-51. Cahn scored 24 while his teammates connected on 41% of their shots to aid in the win.

completely stunned in dropping a 74-62 decision before a near capacity crowd at Grace Hall. The Engineers made it three in a row as they once again rose to the occasion and upset favored Bucknell. Dick Slaff led his team mates with 20 markers.

Gettysburg broke the back of the winning streak when they forced the Packers into submission. Muhlenberg and Lafayette followed suit and the Engineers could only counter with a revenge triumph over Rutgers. Jim Gleckner garnered 21 points in this game while Captain Scotty Malcolm chipped in an additional 16 counters.

Lehigh's five top scorers will form the nucleus of next year's squad. Cahn, Gleckner, Slaff, Dick Witzig, and Clyde Royster who combined for 780 of Lehigh's 1205 points all will return. The only starter to graduate will be Captain Malcolm.

MIDDLE ATLANTIC CHAMPIONS

In terms of individual performances, the 1951-52 swimming season was undoubtedly one of the most successful on record. The season witnessed the establishment of three new school records and a host of near record performances. In addition Coach Bill Christian's mermen retained their Middle Atlantic Championship despite the handicaps of Delaware's narrow pool and poor officiating. The next week they went on to take a strong third in the Eastern Collegiate Swimming Association championships finishing closely behind Pitt and Rutgers. Lehigh's tally in dual meets reads seven wins and three losses.

Medley relay was the first event in which a new mark was set. Swimming against Delaware, Paul Houriet, Lee Peachey, and Bob Hartenstine turned in a 5:05.6. In addition the same trio captured their event in the Middle Atlantics.

Swimming

400 free relay team also established a new school record. Against Princeton, Dave Rosenau, Bob Hartenstine, Tom Schaefer, and Ken Flynn turned in a shattering 5:45.8. Though exceeded in time trials, this time was never bettered in a meet. Later in the season Bob Nick replaced Flynn and helped the quartet win the Middle Atlantics and place second in the ECSA's.

The team was especially strong in the freestyle events. In the sprints Tom Schaefer, Ken Flynn, Bob Hartenstine, and Bob Nick were particularly outstanding. Other sprint stalwarts included Captain Bill Henderson, Dave Rosenau, Bill Marsh, Ken Andersen, Al Miller, and Dick Temple. Though only three men regularly swam in the distance events, we were strongest there. In the 220 sophomore Bob Nick and freshman Don Williams battled it out all year.

In the backstroke Lee Peachey, Al Johnson, and Phil Newman held sway, winning in most meets. Peachey placed in both the Middle Atlantics and ECSA's. In the breast stroke Paul Houriet and Bill Corbet were the mainstays while the individual medley was swum by Dave Fetterman, Bill Seip, and Moon Mullen.

They're off!

Under the able tutelage of Dave Dockham, the divers had a good season. Jim Hobbs was outstanding in taking second in the Middle Atlantics and placing in the ECSA's: Bill Murray placed in the Middle Atlantics. Todd Grant was the team's lone casualty puncturing his windpipe in practice.

MIDDLE ATLANTIC CHAMPIONS

Fencing

Having lost six of his nine men through graduation, fencing coach Harry Boutsikaris faced a major task in getting a squad into shape in time for the season's opening. Lack of experience was an obvious weakness in the first two meets, as the Engineers lost to West Point, 19-8, and Brooklyn College, 17-10.

Lehigh's swordsmen finally got their feet on the ground in the third meet, beating Haverford, 18-9. Then came their 14-15 victory over Rutgers, in which the sabre team saved the day, followed by two easy wins—the first against Temple, 18-9, and the second against Lafayette, 15-12.

The season's best fencing took place when the Engineers held their own for two-thirds of the contest against a Pennsylvania powerhouse, but the spell suddenly shattered and Lehigh came out on the short end, 17-10. After a 16-11 romp over Drew, the fencers closed their season by being upset, 14-15, by Stevens.

In a post-season tournament, the Brown and White walked away with the Middle Atlantic championships, winning the team titles in foil and sabre, and tying for first place in epee with Haverford. Bob Kievit won the Middle Atlantic foil title, while Ken Hergenhan took second place in epee and Boyd Goldwyn came in second in sabre.

Varsity lettermen: Richard W. Cox, Costel D. Denson, Hans C. Dreher, James S. Gall, Boyd D. Goldwyn, James G. Gottling, W. Kenneth Hergenhan, Robert W. Kievit, William H. Laub, Harvey A. Smith, and Edward E. Chick, manager.

Lehigh's 1951-1952 hockey sextet played only three collegiate contests, but from these games the team showed much in the way of speed and power, and it was due to the uncertainty of the weatherman that the squad was unable to participate in any additional contests. The interest and spirit shown by the squad was extremely high, and Coaches Charles Simmons and Wes Sawyer may expect much of the returning lettermen next year.

The opening game of the season saw Lehigh go down to defeat to a strong Rutgers sextet, which, with only seconds remaining in the game, scored to break a 3-3 tie and thus emerged with a hard-earned win, 4-3.

Back on home ice, the Brown and White whipped this same Rutgers team, 5-3, in a contest that saw Captain Chuck Rogers score three times to lead his team to victory.

In the final game of this short season, a highly rated Teaneck semi-pro club took the measure of the Lehigh pucksters, 7-3. Leading 1-0 at the end of the first period, Lehigh just seemed to collapse as the contest drew to a close.

The leading scorer of the team was Chuck Rogers who registered six times; close behind him were Web Dann and Charlie Schadt who each scored twice, and Bill Gurney who scored once.

At the annual hockey banquet, Chuck Rogers was re-elected to captain the 1952-1953 team. He was also cited as the team's most valuable player.

Varsity lettermen: E. Webster Dann, Richard Gordon, William H. Gurney, Donald A. Heath, Bryan Hitchcock, Joseph W. Kryla, Bedford H. Lydon, Richard O. Michal, Robert H. Migliaccio, Roderick G. Randell, Charles P. Rogers, Charles H. Schadt, William S. Shipley and Thomas H. Hey, manager.

Lehigh's rifle team was organized by General Percy Sadler in 1932 when he was a member of the Military Department. During the thirties, the team was coached by Master Sergeant Gasda and enjoyed considerable success, winning the major portion of their shoulder-to-shoulder matches.

In 1941 the varsity, after an undefeated season, advanced to take the Eastern Intercollegiate and to place second in the National Intercollegiate matches. They were sparked by Dave Smith who set the all-time high score of 291 for the three positions.

At the outbreak of World War II the varsity team was discontinued as the ROTC program was replaced by the ASTP. When the ROTC program was again installed, the progress was slow. In the Fall of 1949 a new team was organized and membership on the whole was limited to sophomores and freshmen. The steady progress made by the new group under the coaching of Major James Sovereigns and Master Sergeant George Partlow was climaxed this year with an undefeated season. The season was not only a success in the number of wins but also with respect to the welfare of the club as a whole. Through the combined efforts of the coaches and team members the range facilities were greatly improved and urgently needed equipment was obtained. Don Goss and Dick Cornman co-captained this season's squad.

A summary of this year's statistics shows that the Lehigh team fired more matches than in any other single season, that Dick Cornman came within one point of the all-time high score of 291 for the three positions; that freshman, Tex Arnold, had high individual average of 281 for the season and 89.4 for standing position; Cornman had high average of 94.2 for the kneeling position and Schafer tallied an average of 99.9 for the prone position. The highest team score of 1404 is second highest score recorded by a Lehigh team, being topped only by the championship team of 1941. These averages are based on the scores posted by the five highest scores for each match. Records indicate that the varsity rifle team has never been defeated by the rivaling Lafayette marksmen.

Varsity lettermen: Edwin A. Arnold, Richard W. Cornman, Ronald E. Dornau, Jack A. Giglio, Donald Y. Goss, Robert W. Hardy, Richard C. Harmon, William J. Schafer, Bruce W. Spaulding, Robert A. Wehnau, manager.

The 1951 track team returned to the home oval after two years of away meets while the track was torn up during the addition to Taylor Gym. It was also the first year under Coach William Whitton. The team responded to the new conditions by turning in its best record in several years, winding up 3 and 3 in dual meets, winning one triangular meet, and finishing second in another.

The season was opened against Temple and Swarthmore at home. Temple proved to be in much better condition and won handily, the Brown and White edging Swarthmore for second place. The next Saturday, Lehigh fared better, beating Muhlenberg and Gettysburg. Despite an early lead, the Engineers dropped their next encounter to Rutgers. The first away meet at Haverford saw another defeat for Lehigh.

After that things began to look better as the Brown and White swamped Delaware at the Houseparty meet, making the best showing of the year under blue skies and a warm sun. The next meet saw another victory when Lehigh handed Franklin and Marshall its only defeat of the year by a decisive 75-53 score. Travelling for the second time of the season, the Engineers suffered their third defeat at the hands of its ancient rival Lafayette, but came back in the next meet to beat Ursinus at Collegeville. In the Middle Atlantic, the team did not fare so well, the only point winners being sophomores Dave Henderson in the two mile and Bill Colclough in the mile.

High point scorer for the season was Dave Henderson in the mile and two mile. Other top men were Bill Horn in the weights; Sam Wilkinson, senior hurdler; Bill Colclough in the distances; Dick Cornman, high and broad jumper; Jad Doubleday in the sprints; and Joe Orr in the low hurdles. George Esherick, senior miler, was captain of the team.

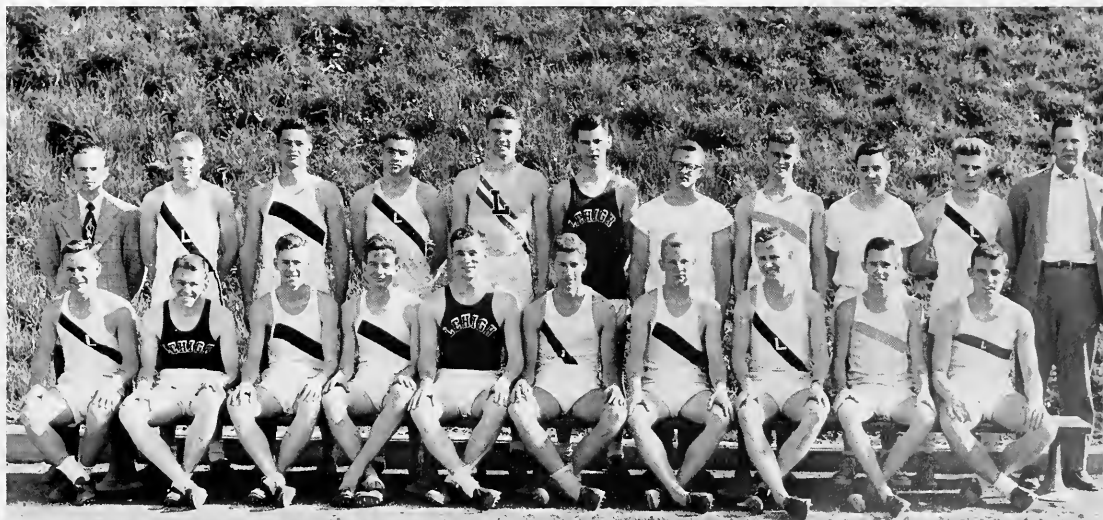

Varsity lettermen: H. Robertshaw Beck, William G. Colclough, Richard W. Cornman, James A. Doubleday, Richard F. Doyne, George T. Esherick, Ralph Z. Fortney, Mark J. Given, A. Lacrosse

In preparation for their regular season the 1951 Lehigh Lacrosse team made a short tour during which it engaged Duke and North Carolina. Due to very wet weather the team had to face a powerful Blue Devil aggregation, ranked second in the country, with very little practice under their belts. After battling the first half on fairly even terms, the Engineers went down to defeat 14-4 in a driving rain. The next day the stickmen bounced back to defeat the Tarheels 7-6.

Lehigh opened its regular season with a thrilling 9-7 upset over Drexel Tech. Led by Chick Kuss, with four goals, and Gealy Wallwork the Engineers scored seven goals in the third quarter to come from behind to win. Roger Weiss was superb in the nets as he made twenty saves.

Washington College presented the best team which Lehigh faced during its regular season. Led by Ray Wood, All-American attack, Washington defeated Lehigh 15-4.

The Brown and White dropped a hard fought, but poorly played, game to Delaware 5-4 for its second loss. Chick Kuss scored three goals, but Lehigh's offense was not up to par and was hindered by numerous penalties.

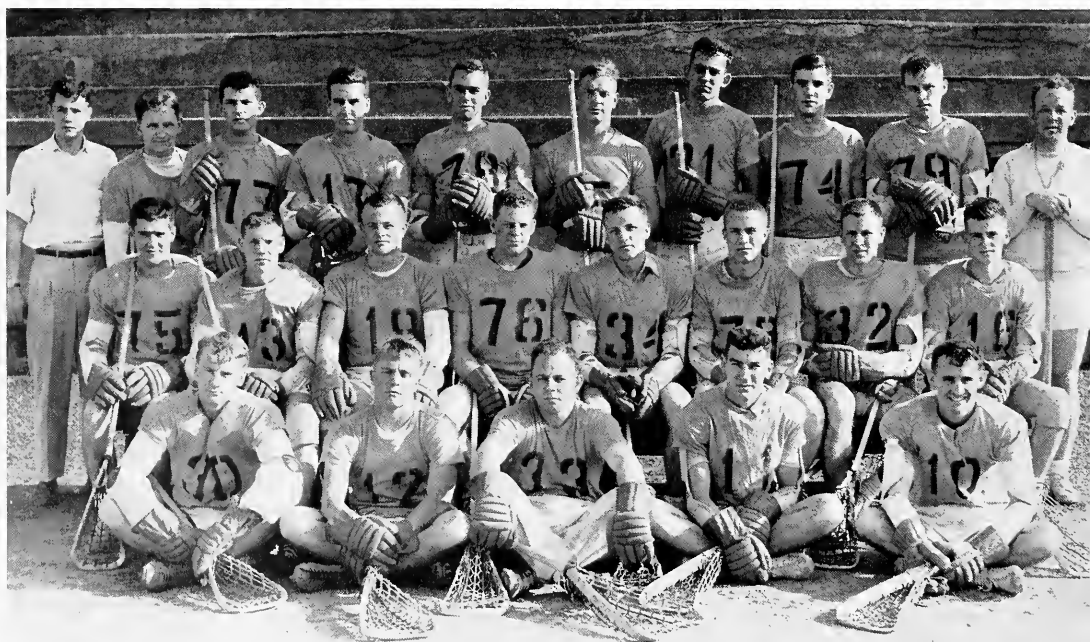

Displaying a smoother offense the Engineers turned back Lafayette 14-7 with Chick Kuss scoring five goals and Johnny Wisotzkey three. Lehigh capitalized on all breaks and scored seven times on the extra-man play.

Continuing its winning ways Lehigh scored an 11-5 Houseparty victory over Franklin and Marshall. After a slow start, the Engineers built up a substantial lead which was held down as the last two periods were cut to five minutes each.

The finest performance of the 1951 season was turned in against Swarthmore, co-champions of the Pennsylvania-Delaware League. An inspired Engineer Squad played on even terms with the Garnet throughout the game, but dropped a close one 5-4. The lead changed hands four times during the engagement.

In an extremely rough game the Engineers lost 6-5 to Stevens Tech. The Lehigh defense was unable to cope with Erickson's long bouncing shots from the center which were the difference between victory and defeat.

A powerful Rutgers squad handed the stickmen a 10-4 defeat in their next encounter. The game was marred by numerous penalties, but despite this fact and the broiling heat, both teams played hard, fast-moving ball. Ted Baldwin, Lehigh's star defense man, dodged the entire length of the field to score the final tally.

The season ended on a sour note with a 10-2 loss to an inspired Pennsylvania team on a muddy field. Lehigh played a listless game as the final score indicates.

Looking over the season, it might be said that a few goals in the right places in some of the earlier games would have made a big difference in the season record. The team showed at Swarthmore that it had the ability to give a better account of itself than it did.

Ted Baldwin received honorable mention All-American; and both he and Chick Kuss were named to the Pennsylvania-Delaware All Star Team. Johnny Wisotzkey and Bill Schaffnit co-captained the 1951 squad; Jim Land was elected as captain of the 1952 team.

Golf

Once again the goal of the golf team—that is, the 1952 version of the squad—is that seemingly unreachable “perfect” season missed in the past two years by just one defeat. Coach Bill Leckonby’s team led by Captain Bob Kiesling is strong due to several returning lettermen and the additional eligibility of freshmen. The major problem is to find replacements for Dave Baldwin and Larry Carpenter, 1951 co-captains.

Last spring the team started with the right stroke by beating Haverford. However, in the next match, cold rainy weather and a strong Penn State team proved too much and Lehigh went down to its only defeat of the season. The remainder of the season saw Lehigh run up a string of eleven straight victories including ones over Rutgers and Temple to avenge a defeat and a tie from the previous season.

On the tournament trail, our team made a good showing by capturing second place in both the Mason-Dixon and the Juniata tournaments. This successful season brought Coach Leckonby’s all time golf record to an amazing 41-6-2.

Coach Eb Caraway's 1951 baseball team proved to be one of Lehigh's best squads, boasting a record of 11 victories compared to seven defeats. Captain Rick Collin led the Big Brown sluggers with a .592 batting average, while Dick Gratton proved to be the squad's top hurler.

Lehigh's season got under way when the team invaded the Southland during the spring vacation. Two runs, one in the seventh inning and one in the eighth, enabled the University of Virginia to edge out a 2-1 decision. Leading 6-0 at the end of seven innings against the Bolling Air Force Base, Lehigh's defense collapsed in the eighth inning and seven big runs crossed the plate for the Airmen and the ball game. With a tenth inning single by Dick Gigon, Lehigh rallied to beat Wagner, 5-4.

After losing to Colgate 5-1, Coach Caraway's team really began to roll and won the next five games in a row. Bob Hodder's sensational relief pitching enabled Lehigh to beat Ursinus 6-4. Dick Gratton pitched a beautiful 5-5 victory over Bucknell and then the Engineers humiliated Rutgers, the District Two, NCAA Champions, by defeating them 14-4.

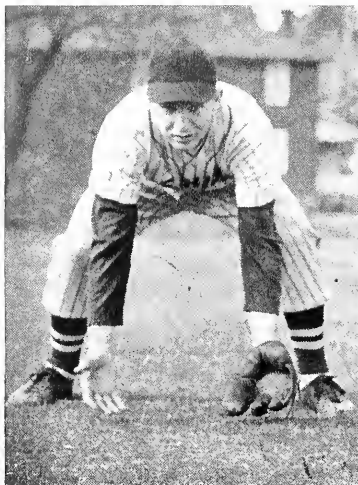

Gratton's six hitter highlighted a 8-2 victory over Stevens, and the team treated a Houseparty crowd to a thrilling 5-4 conquest of rival Lafayette with Gratton winning again. Lehigh's victory streak continued as Roy Neville's sparkling two hit pitching defeated Muhlenberg, 5-1.

The fifth straight victory for Lehigh was at the expense of Franklin and Marshall to the tune of 11 to 2. In a tight ball game against Lafayette, a wild pitch cost Lehigh a heart-breaking loss, 1-0.

The Big Brown came right back with Gratton hurling his fourth victory of the season against the University of Delaware by a 5-2 score. The Rutgers' batters opened up to avenge the earlier defeat and blasted out a 19-1 defeat against the Engineers.

La Salle foiled Lehigh's bid for their first Middle Atlantic Baseball Championship when they put together three two-run innings to win with odd inning run, 7-5. Dick Gratton continued his torrid pace and won his fifth victory of the season over Swarthmore, 8-2.

What can be considered the best varsity baseball season in many years ended on a sour note at Gettysburg with the 'Burg men taking a 10-4 victory. The Lehigh inner defense collapsed and permitted nine unearned runs to cross the plate for Gettysburg.

The 1951 tennis team closely resembled the Freshmen squad of the previous year. Bill Dengler, Sam Keiser, Paul Torgerson, and Newt Bugbee all moved up to take over varsity positions. Filling the remaining positions were Bob Haft, Hall McKinley, and Pete Shaw, all veterans of the 1950 campaign.

This was also the first season as varsity coach for Lloyd Taylor, who began his coaching career the previous year with the freshmen squad.

The team opened the season auspiciously with a 9-0 victory over Gettysburg. Then it met its toughest opponents of the season, Rutgers and Davidson, and lost to each by 8-1 counts. Returning to the winning column, the Mountaineers defeated both Drexel and Upsala. In the next contest which was decided by the last set of the final match Temple squeezed out a 5-4 victory.

Swarthmore also claimed a victory before the Lehigh squad launched its longest winning streak of the season by downing West Chester, Lafayette, and Muhlenberg. But the season was to end on a more dismal note as both Haverford and Bucknell registered victories over the home team. Thus the season ended with 5 victories against 5 defeats.

Varsity lettermen: Newton A. K. Bugbee, William C. Dengler, Robert M. Haft, Samuel H. Keiser, Hall F. McKinley, Emmett W. Poindexter, D. Peter Shaw, Paul E. Torgersen, Donald S. Walker, and John J. Pukansky, manager.

The 1951-52 school year was quite a busy one for the cheerleaders, especially with the inauguration of cheering at home basketball games. This innovation was a definite factor in the obvious improvement of student spirit at the games since, for the first time in several years, the players were made aware of student support behind them.

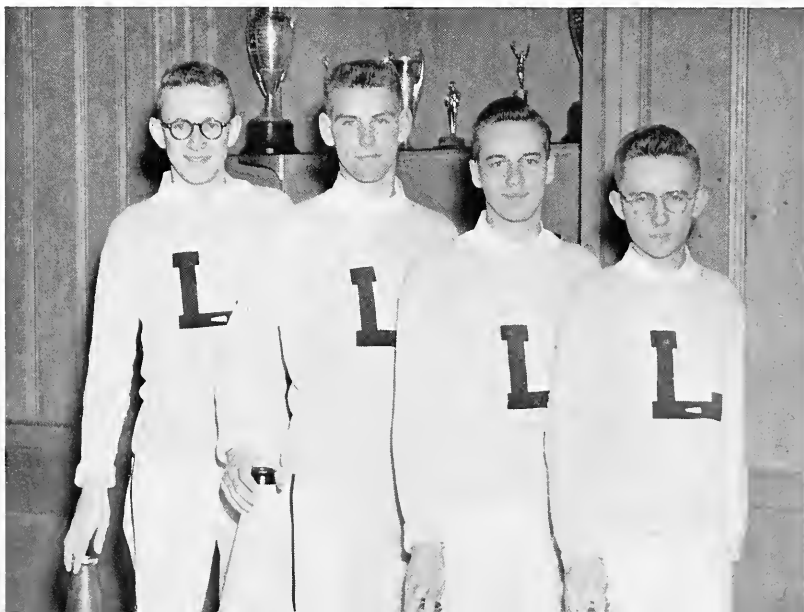

Cheerleaders

Highlighting the season's activities on the gridiron were the Rutgers and Carnegie Tech games—both of which were away. At Rutgers the combination of a great-hearted football team and the unabated enthusiasm of the "holler guys" kept the thousands of Lehigh fans in an uproar for the full sixty minutes while the Brown and White was taking the measure of their opponents. Needless to say, the men in the white uniforms led the way to the goal posts after the final gun sounded.

Wally Field, head cheerleader, and George Hopkins made the trip to Pittsburgh for the Carnegie Tech game. In spite of the small Lehigh representation, the enthusiasm there was unbeatable (as was the team). Nothing the Carnegie rooters or Kiltie Band could do to drown out the Lehigh yells was able to keep them from booming across Forbes Field. The larger Tech cheering section was a hollow thud by comparison.

Interfraternity Council

The Interfraternity Council was established at Lehigh University in 1909 for the benefit of the fraternities as an integral group. This year the constitution underwent several major changes. The most prominent of these changes is in the method of representation and voting in the council. The voting power lies with the presidents of the various member fraternities with each house having a junior representative who is also present at the meetings and presents ideas to the group, but is without voting power.

One of the many worthy activities of the Council has been the aid given to a war orphan through the Foster Parent Adoption Plan for War Children. Through this agency, assistance is given in the form of food, clothing and games.

Each Christmas the members of the IFC give a party for the children from the Bethlehem Boy's Club. Presents are donated from the different fraternities and the IFC supplies ice cream and cake. As a result of the success of the party many of the fraternities now give their own individual Christmas parties for similar groups.

As a termination of the rushing season each year, the IFC sponsors a Greek Weekend banquet. All the pledges plus one representative from each house are invited and following the meal itself the evening features short talks from the Deans, other college officials and from an outstanding leader of the fraternity world. The banquet thus brings together all the pledges in a spirit of comradeship and offers them a challenge as they begin their pledge training. As a culmination of Greek Weekend IFC acts as hosts to all the pledges and other fraternity men at the IFC dance. As a part of the IFC weekend this year the annual Monte Carlo party was held on Saturday night.

Again this year we have a new set of rushing rules, which have been quite a bit nearer to the goal of perfection than those which we have had in the past.

This year the IFC once more sponsored the Lafayette display contest. Under set rules, fraternities compete in building a display that will convey in a new and interesting manner their desire to defeat our old rival down the river. Congratulations for the winning of this year's award go to Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Interdormitory Council

The need for a dormitory governing body was first realized when Richards House was added to the dorm system. IDC was organized in 1958 to serve specifically as such a governing body.

The purposes of IDC are: "to provide a higher tribunal in which dormitory matters may be discussed; to carry on and develop more fully dormitory social and intramural functions; to work for a more cohesive and cooperative relationship between dormitory men; to serve as a coordinating body between the dormitory and the university."

In carrying out the second of these purposes of IDC, action was taken this year to sponsor the Fall Houseparty Square Dance with Town Council. This dance was well-attended and proved to be very successful. Also along the social line are mixed parties held in the dormitories. Drinker House, with its home-made bar, and Dravo C-2 were the guiding lights in the move toward social life for the dorm residents.

The problem of a freshmen majority in each section brought forth a revision in the allocation of housing accommodations in the residence halls system. The new document prescribes a just method of selecting permanent section members as well as prescribing punishment for disorderly section members.

The IDC Competition was established early in 1950 "to promote unity and cooperation within each living group and encourage activity along extra-curricular and scholastic lines" by rewarding the dorm section amassing the greatest point total in fields of scholarship, extra-curricular activities, intramural sports and intercollegiate athletics and internal administration. The Competition first became a meaningful award when Richards III-A received the 1950-51 prize and banquet.

In cooperation with the rest of the Lehigh family, IDC helped to support financially through its constituents the Campus Chest and also donated to the Red Cross almost 500 pints of blood.

MORRIS R. RONEMUS, Drinker House

S. RICHARD McCLURE, Price Hall

SAMUEL S. JOHNSON, Taylor Hall

Discussion groups with faculty members in the dorm lounges were finding favorable reactions by the dorm residents.

The Discipline Committee of IDC was quite active, particularly with freshmen who abused the freedom of community living. Just decisions proved beneficial to the living group as a whole and to individuals who realized their freedoms and responsibilities.

The Lamberton Hall Committee turned out to be one of the more active groups in working for the betterment of the eating service.

Organized to provide non-fraternity students living off-campus with a chance to take an active part in Lehigh life, Town Council during the past year undertook a vast revitalization project that was the keynote of its very existence.

Composed of 525 students from Bethlehem, Allentown, Easton and other areas, some as far away as Lansdale, Town Council is virtually the only means available for many students to take part in the social, athletic, educational and governmental activities carried on in the extra-curricular program at Lehigh. But for years, Town Council had been in the doldrums as a result of apathy.

The revitalization project got under way in the spring of 1951. By the fall of 1951 the plans, studied during the summer, were put into operation and during registration week the results of the program came to light when the membership in Town Council amounted to nearly double the figure of the previous year.

New section representatives were elected by a mail ballot in early October and as solicitors for the Campus Chest these men turned in the astounding increase of 250 per cent in funds collected over the year before.

Outstanding speakers highlighted social meetings during the fall and winter. Dr. Ralph Steinhart spoke in October about life at the Los Alamos atomic bomb project. Professor Vernon Root presented an illustrated lecture on his travels in Europe, and in January, President Martin D. Whitaker spoke on the "One-Hundred Year Plan."

- - - - we like to think, was always something special. For even back in the fall of '48 those six hundred and seventy-eight men, overwhelmed by Freshman Week and the soon-to-follow eight o'clock history lectures, quickly took firm hold of themselves.

Perhaps it was the earnestness of the healthy percentage of veterans among us that instilled the class with a sense of sober responsibility. For the same reason, we were spared the ostentatious browbeating which is traditionally the freshman burden—how many of us wore dinks 'til the Lafayette bonfire?

We were fortunate, too, in that the many clubs and course societies at Lehigh were reorganized after the lapse of war years and we were caught in a wave of enthusiasm.

The Class of '52 stood up magnificently to the severe jostling given them by world disorder. The advent of another war at first brought feelings of despair and terrible uncertainty, steering all our conversation to talk of draft boards, physicals, test scores and, of course, Korea (forty-three members of our class were in uniform before graduation). However, the Class of '52 individually realized that a "the hell with it!" attitude toward studies was of no benefit, and we knuckled down to work with greater determination to make good—come what may. At graduation time, we looked around and saw that not only were most of us still here at Lehigh, but we had confidence in the future—for job opportunities were at an all-time high.

Returning from summer vacation for the last time, we saw in our fellow classmate a change in his bearing—the attitude of a man who now knew where he was going. The years at Lehigh were coming to fruition. We had seen for ourselves during the summer that Lehigh was making us into men that would keep up with the best, and it is this that gave us our confidence.

We have room here only to mention some of our class social functions: the Snow Ball, our sophomore year; the Night at Monte Carlo, the following year; and fall house-party of our senior year—October Twilight.

The exceptional spirit of the Class of '52 is an established fact. During the last two years almost everyone, whether conscious of it or not, had found within himself a great pride in Lehigh. We knew Lehigh was the best there is. And to keep it so, we bought our way into The Class Gift Insurance Plan.

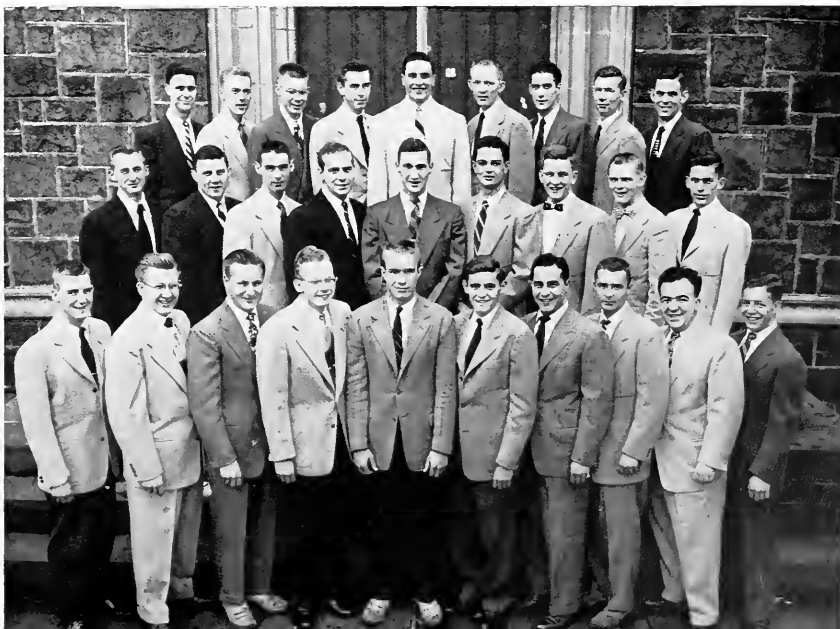

Among our memories is the soft beauty of center campus after a newfallen snow—and how the soot greyed it within the hour, the parting conversations on the stairways of Packer Hall, the smell of brand new gym equipment; the revelry when Lafayette defeat meant Lehigh's first undefeated eleven, and the sense of completeness lent to many occasions by Chaplain Bean's smooth drawl.

One Man Is the Best Diver

But 2,600 Students Make an Athletic Program

IN A SWIMMING MEET, physical fitness may make the difference between victory and defeat. In life, too, the man in top physical condition has a priceless advantage. Accordingly, Lehigh University recognizes that as one swimmer may influence the outcome of a meet, so some 2,600 students will influence the world in which they live.

Lehigh's traditional goal of training men physically as well as intellectually requires an athletic program which can meet the varied sports interests and abilities of its entire student body. For the more skilled athlete there are varsity teams in 15 sports, freshman teams in almost all of these, and junior varsity teams in football, wrestling, basketball, swimming, and baseball.

The intramural sports program involves students from dormitory, fraternity, interclass, town, and independent groups. Here 11 regularly established sports offer a chance for the average student to find supervised, competitive exercise. Students not participating in any organized sports must report for regular physical education classes and those with physical limitations are given corrective exercises. All students must swim 75 feet before graduation.

The planning, equipping, and supervising of these combined programs comprise an obligation which Lehigh University gladly accepts, confident that the interests of our country and world will be best served by a well-balanced graduate, equal to the responsibilities of his society.

How to Save on Yearbook Production Costs

There is a limit to what schools can afford to spend on publications. The increase in the cost of printing, paper, covers, engravings, and binding presents serious problems to every school or class budget.

Our offset department, which is producing exceptionally fine work, can help solve some of these cost problems. Our policy is to study your specific problem and find out the best and most economical way to produce your book, using either offset or letterpress, or a combination of both processes. The school staff can do much of the work on a book printed by offset. We will be glad to discuss this type of a book with you.

For many years, we at Kutztown, have been proud of our record as printers and producers of school and college annuals.

We are pleased to list some of the books we are producing this year: Princeton University, Lehigh University, Muhlenberg College, Albright College, Moravian College, Norristown High School, Tamaqua High School, Lansdale High School, Reading Central Catholic High School, Slatington High School, Hamburg High School, Plymouth High School and Kutztown High School.

Thanks To the small but active Epitome staff who sacrificed many valuable hours to make this yearbook possible;

our own Class of 1952 and its officers for their cooperation and support;

our advertisers whose generosity has earned our deepest gratitude;

and, in particular,

Associate Professor Francis J. Quirk for his suggestions concerning the divider photographs;

Mr. Martin H. Ritter, Mr. Howard C. Troy, and Mr. Thomas J. McLaughlin for their assistance in smoothing out rough spots in the layout;

Mrs. Heinz Engel and Mrs. Charles J. Moravec for their material contributions in typing and serving as general "clearing house" and information bureau, but even more for their moral support;

Assistant Professor J. B. McFadden and Mr. Walton H. Hutchins, our faculty advisers;

Mr. Robert F. Herrick, Mr. Charles J. Moravec, and Miss Lucile L. Barrett of the Public Relations Office;

Mr. and Mrs. Rhuel Roberts of the Berthold Studio; Mr. Arnold Cirman and Mr. Robert L. Allen of the Varden Studios;

Mr. Charles H. Esser and Mr. Jacob R. Esser of the Kutztown Publishing Company;

Mr. Edward K. Steiner of the S. K. Smith Company;

Mr. Arthur G. Sharp of the Horan Engraving Company;

and, finally, thanks to all you members of the Lehigh Family—students, faculty, administration, and alumni—and parents and friends who, by merely reading the 1952 Epitome, have given us the incentive to make it the best yearbook possible. We hope succeeding Epitome staffs will feel this incentive as we have and, in putting into the yearbook their ideas, time, and effort, will derive genuine satisfaction from its production. Our best wishes go to them and our thanks to all of you.

THE EDITORS

Epitome 1952 is bound in artificial leather with lettering embossed in copper. The text is printed in Egmont type with Lydian Cursive and Egmont Bold display lines on Satin Proof coated stock.

Senior portraits and group photography were done by the Berthold Studio, Allentown, Pennsylvania, and the Varden Studios, Rochester, New York. Engravings were supplied by the Horan Engraving Company, New York City. Covers were produced by the S. K. Smith Company, Chicago, Illinois. The book was printed and serviced by the Kutztown Publishing Company, Kutztown, Pennsylvania.
